

LBJ's State of Union:

Accent on Negative

WASHINGTON (L.A.T.) — Noting "a certain restlessness" in the land, President Johnson talked Wednesday night to the nation of its troubles as he delivered an election year State of the Union message.

The accent was on the negative:

- He offered little hope for a quick peace in Vietnam as he engaged in another round of semantic dueling with the North Vietnamese leaders.

- He offered no new domestic programs to the general population and only expanded old ones to the impoverished in the urban ghettos.

- He renewed his demands for a tax increase and protection of the dollar to fight inflation and the balance of payments problems.

He said he will ask Congress to repeal the law which requires a 25 per cent "gold cover" for dollars in circulation. He said this would free U.S. gold reserves and hold steady the international exchange value of the dollar.

- He asked Congress to deal with such consumer problems as unsafe and substandard goods, rising medical costs and crime in the streets.

- He disclosed the budget for the 1969 fiscal year to be sent to Congress shortly will call for spending of $186,000,000,000 under a new unified budget format, with a deficit of $8,000,000,000 if Congress enacts his tax increase. If Congress fails to approve his 10-per-cent surtax, the 1969 deficit will be $20,000,000,000, he said, the same as in the current year.

Beyond tipping North Vietnam off to the fact that this country would like to discuss "a really true ceasefire" if negotiations ever did begin, he offered no hope that talks were in the offing.

He reiterated what has now come to be known as the "San Antonio formula" for beginning talks:

That the United States would stop the bombing of North Vietnam if the cessation meant "talks would take place promptly and with reasonable hopes that they would be productive."

That appeared to be a direct reply to the spate of apparent Communist peace feelers that began Dec. 29 when North Vietnamese foreign minister Nguyen Duy Trinh said there "will be" talks if the bombing stops. Previously Hanoi had

Knifed

HOUSTON (UPI) — The U.S. space agency has slashed in half its once-ambitious program for manned space exploration after the Apollo flight to the moon because of budget cut-backs, it was learned Wednesday.

One of the projects cancelled from the program known as Apollo Applications was a space station in which astronauts would live for up to a year.

Also out of the picture, for the foreseeable future, is a complete series of advanced moon exploration missions which scientists had recommended to the space agency.

All that remains now in the program is a single embryonic space station and sun-watching telescope. Astronauts will live in that station for one 28-day

Spider Biology --- First Hand

Basic biology of spiders, even under glass, was illustrated for 11-year-old Suzanne May, 1111 Dominion, after family friend gave her black widow.

Curious creeper produced egg sac, from which sprang 50 young. Now, as little ones disappear, survivors ominously keep doubling in size daily.

PEARSON MUZZLES
CANDIDATES

By RON COLLISTER, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Pearson, at a secret meeting in his home, has laid down the law to the leadership candidates.

The message was simple and blunt:

Public cabinet feuding must end and there must not be a repetition of the Halifax spectacle last weekend, when candidates battled over medicare.

The five candidates, two declared and three undeclared, were called to Pearson's home as reports of threatened resignations spiced up the leadership race.

The five men were: Transport Minister Paul Hellyer and Health Minister Allan MacEachen, both declared candidates; External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who declares Friday; Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, who declares today, and Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, whose plans are not yet clear.

Four-Point Manifesto

Pearson issued a four-point manifesto:

- Cabinet candidates should not criticize the government in public.

- They should not accept public debate with each other.

- They should make no public declaration on medicare.

- And there should be no liquid entertaining of delegates at the Winnipeg meeting this weekend, after 10 a.m., before Mr. Pearson and the candidates speak.

Similar rules would apply at future rallies, in Montreal and Toronto.

Spokesmen for some candidates said they were happy that Pearson had laid down guidelines.

lines in private, and hoped he would do so in public.

He was out of the country, on vacation, when the candidates were deciding if they should go to Halifax last weekend.

And if he had been in Ottawa, it might have been possible to have an agreement that the candidates, except Nova Scotian favorite son Allan MacEachen, should not go.

At present, it seems that more candidates will be at Winnipeg than were at Halifax.

After talks with Quebec's Jean Marchand and Pierre-Elliott Trudeau, Turner is reported to feel "encouraged" to try for the leadership.

There is no firm decision yet on whether or not Marchand or Trudeau will run, but it could be Trudeau.

Marchand is understood to feel that, as Quebec federal leader, his stature would be diminished if he ran — and lost.

Marchand controls the Quebec organization but Trudeau is emerging as an important candidate with rising national appeal.

Sharp declares his candidacy in Toronto, in his own constituency, tonight.

Martin declares Friday and Pearson will have a news conference the same day.

The race is warming up. Excitement is feverish. And, as some see it, it may be hard to make these guidelines stick ... even through Winnipeg, in a few days time.

Dead

MINOT, N.D. (CP) — Twelve men died Wednesday morning when a giant KC-135 tanker plane crashed on take-off from Minot Air Force Base. There was one survivor.

The 13 men aboard the aircraft were all from March Air Force Base in Riverside, Calif.

The United States Air Force said Maj.-Gen. Charles M. Eisenhart, vice-commander of the 11th Air Force, was among those killed.

Raft Drop

Freighter

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Air Force planes failed Wednesday in an attempt to drop life rafts to a Dutch freighter reported in danger of sinking in mid-Atlantic with its own small boats either lost or disabled.

The U.S. Coast Guard said the captain of the freighter, Ocean Sprit, released the "three planes" allowing them to leave the scene.

He messaged that the ship's crew of approximately 16 would try to stay on the listing vessel through the night, the coast guard reported.

Two U.S. merchant ships were standing by the stricken freighter about 1,300 miles east of New York.

Peace Talks
Possible
'Within Days'

PARIS (UPI)—Hanoi would be willing to talk with Washington within days after determining that the United States has stopped bombing North Vietnam, a French newsmen quoted North Vietnamese sources in Paris as saying Wednesday.

Georges Brousseau, editor of the daily newsletter La Politique du Matin said the sources elaborated on an interview with Mai Van Bo, the North Vietnamese delegate to Paris, which was released Tuesday.

Van Bo said the talks between American and North Vietnamese representatives would begin within "a reasonable time" after the unconditional cessation of bombing by the U.S. Van Bo did not specify what he meant by "a reasonable time." But Brousseau said his sources told him it could be a matter of days.

U.S. Breaks Promise

Russians Doubt
Canada Sincere

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia says Canadian sales of arms to the United States cast doubt on the sincerity of Canadian government declarations that it wants to help bring about peace in Southeast Asia.

An article by A. Igrakov says export of arms and military supplies from Canada to the U.S. is growing steadily as American involvement continues in Vietnam.

SHELLS, PLANES

"Under concluded contracts Canada is delivering to the American armed forces artillery ordnance and shells, aircraft and armaments for them, radio-relaying equipment, warheads for missiles, explosives, etc. These arms are being sent from the United States to South Vietnam."

The article says use of Canadian-made arms in Vietnam aroused public indignation and protests in Canada.

It says the protests stressed that the weapons sales were "incompatible with the status of Canada as a member of the International Control Commission (on Vietnam) and grossly contradicts the government's statements on the need of stopping the war in Vietnam."

Quake Hits
Brazil Area

FORTALEZA, Brazil (UPI) — An earthquake Wednesday rocked the town of Pereiro, causing widespread damage. There were no immediate reports of casualties. Ceara state officials said the quake was felt in a 25-mile area stretching to Sao Miguel in Rio Grande do Norte state.

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — Cambodian head-of-state Prince Norodom Sihanouk has accused the United States of cynically disregarding its promises and affirming its right to launch military operations inside Cambodia.

Addressing a dinner Wednesday night for visiting Yugoslav President Tito, Sihanouk said he regrets that so few countries have denounced "this scandalous arrogance and this scorn for a word of honor."

He referred to recent statements by the U.S. State department which he described as "cynically proclaiming that America is not bound by the promises just made by the representative of President Johnson and affirming its right to launch military operations up to 16 kilometres (10 miles) inside our territory."

Later, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug quoted Tito as telling the dinner that Vietnamese peace talks now depend on the United States.

He called for the unconditional halt of bombing of North Vietnam and for recognition of the National Liberation Front — political arm of the Viet Cong — as an equal partner in any negotiations.

Bribery

Pin
Tax Men

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty-six top-grade U.S. federal tax agents and a prominent accountant were arrested Wednesday on charges of bribing an Internal Revenue Service investigator who had uncovered corruption in connection with auditing income tax returns.

U.S. attorney Robert Morgenthau said a grand jury that has been investigating tax bribery cases for four years had made a "deep investigation" into all transactions handled by the 26 agents and will follow up all leads in an effort to uncover other irregularities which could include the tax payer personally.

"We're going back just as far as we possibly can," Morgenthau said.

The suspects were identified as four former IRS agents and 22 field men, all of whom had averaged about $13,000 a year in salary. They allegedly paid bribes to an unidentified IRS inspector to quash investigations of bribe attempts of which they were suspect and to obtain confidential information about their cases.

Downed Aircraft
Buried in Snow?

VANCOUVER (CP) — An all-sea rescue centre spokesman said Wednesday an aircraft missing 10 days with three men aboard may be buried in snow in the mountains.

The aircraft might not be found for months because of the snow, said the spokesman.

Poor visibility over the Great Divide area between Alberta and B.C. again hampered the search Wednesday for the aircraft. The search was to resume today.

Missing on the 500-mile flight from Vancouver to Edmonton are consulting engineers Reginald Cameron Thurber and Harvey Dishaw, both of Victoria, and pilot Gary Foslein of Burnaby.

Not a Feather Ruffled in Neutral Nest

By IAN STREET

The men who will clash head-on after the legislature opens one week from today met by accident here Wednesday.

Premier Bennett had dropped into the press gallery to tell reporters the government had traded in his official car — a five-year-old Lincoln — for a Cadillac.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan came in to provide some other material.

For a moment both were taken by surprise, but they recovered quickly and exchanged a warm handshake and greetings.

It didn't seem to matter that a few minutes earlier, in the same room, Mr. Strachan had referred to a cuckoo in connection with the premier. Or that a few days earlier, on his return from Palm Springs, Mr. Bennett had referred to criticism by the opposition leader as chirping of birds who come out of the bushes when the legislative session rolls around.

"How are you, Mr. Leader?" the premier said with a broad smile.

"Good to see you, Mr. Premier," Mr. Strachan replied, equally friendly.

Mr. Bennett explained that he had been inspecting preparations in the legislative chamber for the session opening Jan. 25. He came into the press gallery rooms down the corridor for the first time in about a year.

The premier told Mr. Strachan: "It's nice to meet you on this friendly ground."

"Yes," said Mr. Strachan, "it's always neutral here."

Mr. Bennett then made a comment about how members of the gallery were good at asking questions, but when questioned themselves didn't give very good answers. Mr. Strachan chuckled in agreement and offered to leave if the premier wished to continue his conversation with reporters.

The premier insisted he remain, and Mr. Strachan did. A reporter mentioned that earlier in the day, during a press conference with Mr. Strachan, there had been a "discussion about birds."

An embarrassed smile crossed the face of the opposition leader, but the word "cuckoo" was not mentioned in the presence of Mr. Bennett.

(Mr. Strachan had told reporters that in reply to the premier's jibe about opposition critics, "I'm inclined to make some kind of comment about the cuckoo arriving back in town, but I won't." He added: "I'm sure if you print that as I said it, people will get the inference.")

Mr. Bennett said the new Cadillac official car was a limousine which cost "a net of $7,500" and had been obtained in the normal manner with the purchasing commission inviting bids. The Cadillac to be supplied by Morrison Motors was the low bid, he said.

ANDY
CAPP

Chef Should Test Vital Ingredient

THE SECRET: Since recent mention here of chicken cooked in wine (coq au vin), there have been callers who want to know how to make this dish at home. It's easy.

Here are the basic rules, but don't feel bound to follow them to the letter. After all, cooking is an art.

Assemble the following:— a three-pound broiler chicken which should be disassembled, a little olive oil, a large spoon of chopped onion, a little flour, a cup of red wine, a cup of chicken stock (easily made with those little cubes), a sliver or two of garlic, a pinch of thyme, 10 small onions about the size of a 50-cent coin, a cup of mushrooms, either fresh or canned but sliced thin.

First open a bottle of red wine (I like the Australian burgundy) and test it. If you are not totally satisfied that it is good enough, try a second glass.

Then brown the chicken in the oil, which you have first heated in a large fry pan. When the chicken is golden, stir in the flour and cook until this, too, is brown. The idea is to give the coq au vin a good, rich color.

Add the rest of the ingredients and bring to a boil. Cover and simmer until the meat is tender.

I have found that the results are better if the whole concoction is transferred to a large saucepan. The key to the entire operation is to keep the meat covered with liquid. This can be achieved by having a little chicken broth and red wine on hand to top up the pot. You can also top up your glass while waiting for the stew to stew.

The coq au vin can be served with boiled potato or French bread toasted with garlic butter. No matter what, don't stick to the established pattern — add a few carrots or this and that.

A full-bodied red wine is essential.

GHOSTLY NEWS: Old soldiers who served with the 16th Battalion got a bit of a shock when they saw copies of the unit newspaper in their mail boxes.

The Brazier has been revived by the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) to keep serving and former members of the unit informed on regimental activities.

According to Major Eric Henderson, the first issue of the Brazier was published in France on Feb. 15, 1916. At that time the staff comprised Drummer A. R. McCreadie and Piper George Inglis.

TAKE THE BUS: Our London Bus company has added a fourth double-decker that almost did not make it to Victoria because of low bridges. Harold Olafson bought the latest addition to his fleet from a company which had imported one from London to use as a tourist attraction at Expo.

After a series of dead ends, he decided to ship it to the Coast on a CPR flatcar. The biggest problem was getting it from Vancouver to Victoria.

It's too tall for the ferries. After a lot of negotiations, it came here on a chartered barge. There was a time when societies flourished to take care of old horses that were retired from the hackney trade.

Now it seems old buses are cared for by Mr. Olafson, who puts them out to the green pastures of the tourist trade.

RICH READING: The Star Weekly has paid the highest price ever for a Canadian manuscript. The publication did not say what it turned over to Pierre Berton for three 2,500-word sections from his latest book, The Smug Society, but there is word that the price per word is higher than Life Magazine paid Sir Winston Churchill for his memoirs.

The publishers of the book, McLelland and Stewart, have ordered a first printing of 100,000 copies — the biggest first printing of any book published in Canada.

Little Hope Seen for Quick Peace said there "could" be such talks.

Johnson, in talking of the need for a ceasefire, also let the Saigon government know he would consult with it before making any agreements. He said:

"If a basis for peace talks can be established on the San Antonio foundation — and it is my hope and my prayer that they can — we would consult with our allies and with the other side to see if a complete really true ceasefire — could be made the first order of business."

Administration leaders made certain to tell newsmen that the proposed 1969 federal budget would contain no new spending hikes beyond those for defence and such statutory increases as pay raises, veterans aid, social security benefit boosts and interest payments. Thus the president, in his address, proposed no new programs of a remarkable nature.

U.S. Rocketship In Money Pinch

EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI) — America's current money pinch may clip the wings of its sleek rocketship X15 next fall, it was reported here. A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said there were no provisions in the forthcoming budget for 1968-69 for continuing the X15 research project.

He called for the start of construction for 300,000 public housing units during the coming year and the beginning of a federal-private enterprise program to employ the nation's half-million hard-core unemployed living in ghettos. He called for an attack on rising medical costs and for legislation to curb the illicit sale of LSD and other drugs.

He asked more money for child health programs and model cities and then, in a kind of plaintive note, asked the House to complete the unfinished work of last year — the proposals from the 1967 State of the Union.

He specifically asked the House to approve bills, already passed by the Senate, on truth-in-lending (to make interest charges more meaningful to consumers), pipeline safety and fire safety.

He received by far his biggest applause from the lawmakers in talking about crime control. But even here he proposed no new programs, asking Congress only to give him the Safe Street Act he sent to Capitol Hill last year.

"There is no more urgent business before the congress than to pass the Safe Street Act," he said, adding that he has doubled the request under the act from $50,000,000 last year to $100,000,000 now. The funds would be used to help states and local governments improve law enforcement. He also promised to ask for additional men to enforce drug laws, to help prosecute criminals — 10 additional assistant U.S. attorneys — and to protect individual rights by adding 100 FBI agents.

Unventilated Basement Suite No Place for Bronchial Boy

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: We have been living in an unventilated basement for several months and everything is becoming moulded and mildewed, even clothes in the closets. We have very little ventilation, especially at night. I have a seven-year-old child who has bronchitis. Is living here harmful to him? — E. A. F.

I am afraid that it probably will be harmful. More ventilation would be one way to help things. Another would be to get a dehumidifier which takes dampness out of the air. Health aside, the mould is going to be destructive enough to be costly unless you reduce the moisture.

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister is an incessant frost eater. Every day she digs and scrapes the freezer. She has been at it for four or five years. I think she is on the road to danger. — W. B. Frost is just frozen moisture, so I don't see any great harm in it, but the freezer takes a beating from being opened more often than necessary. I don't suppose she'd settle for a frozen fruit stick in the icebox, and take a few licks when the frosty urge hits?

Dear Dr. Molner: I get up two to four times a night because of prostate trouble. Is there a medicine I can take, or do I have to have an operation? Which would you recommend? — J. T. W.

Little if anything can be accomplished with pills (except when acute infection has to be suppressed). Massage and other treatments are sufficient in some cases; in others, surgery is the only solution. Your doctor should rule on the operation.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could taking one pentobarbital pill twice a week to induce sleep have any harmful effects? — W. Z.

No.
Note to Mrs. S. A.: I am in no position to decide between the conflicting medical opinions you encountered. I would abide by the opinion of the doctor who already has improved your hearing.

Spirit Not Dead

THOUGH MANY of Great Britain's friends, allies and trading partners have been quick to express their concern over how they will be affected by her reluctant but voluntary resignation as a major world power and her simultaneous introduction of a program of severely restrictive measures in an effort to bolster her slipping economy, few have given a thought to the real victims of the drama—the British people.

Never quite as blessed with the fullness of post-war prosperity as enjoyed by the people of most other Western countries—including the inhabitants of former enemy nations—Britons, in the main, have had anything but an easy time of it for well over a quarter of a century.

Yet despite this the spirit of Dunkirk still lives on, as evidenced by the patriotic action of five young and miniskirted typists in a Surrey factory who spontaneously offered to work an extra 30 minutes a day without extra pay to help boost productivity. As a result of this another 740 employees of the firm followed suit and the company responded by reducing its shareholders' dividends and cutting the price of its product by 5 per cent.

This action was followed by others. A printing firm in Lincolnshire turned out 100,000 "I'm backing Britain" badges, and a British cabinet minister and long-time unionist set his own example of Dunkirkian fortitude by making a point of buying British-made goods on a recent shopping spree, even though they cost more, quality for quality, than foreign imports.

Laudable though these efforts were they have been quickly criticized on the home front. Trade union bosses took the girls and the backing-Britain campaign to task for employing a "gimmick" to cover up poor industrial management.

Their view was supported by The London Observer, which directed its attention to the cabinet minister. Far from being patriotic, the journal claims, the minister was being the reverse:

"He was giving some temporary help to the balance of payments at the cost of supporting inefficient British producers. Our makers of... all manufactured goods, which we can and should produce efficiently and competitively, are already enjoying protection given to them by Parliament through import duties, and now their competitive position has been reinforced by the rise in prices of imported manufactures resulting from devaluation."

"If British manufacturers cannot compete reasonably successfully in the home market without the need for reinforcement from a Buy British campaign, there is little hope that they can meet the challenges in export markets, on which the nation's economic future depends."

As ungallant as it may seem, the argument put forward by The Observer is a valid one. Though it points out that bravado is not enough at this time it does not in any way negate the mettle of those who are still ready to show the world that Britain can take it and still come up a winner.

Inquiry Pending

READERS MAY HAVE BEEN SHOCKED by the reported comments of crew members of HMCS Qu'Appelle who were interviewed following the grounding of their vessel. For, in summary, they seemed most concerned with the loss of a full night's sleep and the possibility of cancellation of a scheduled cruise to Japan.

But the quoted comments of these young men cannot be accepted as representative of the attitude of seamen towards their ship or even at their face value. They were more likely a result of a combination of embarrassment, which the whole navy must share for this extraordinary accident, and an unconscious desire to make light of the incident.

Most seamen—and it is unthinkable that Canadians or the people in Qu'Appelle are exceptions to the rule—have an affection for the ship in which they serve.

They may indeed call her "that old tub" and describe her in even more uncomplimentary terms, but it would be unwise for an outsider to slander their charge.

A naval board will examine the causes for the grounding of Qu'Appelle and the almost hilarious series of mishaps which developed during the rescue operations, and no doubt will fix responsibility. In the meantime there is little profit in speculating on the cause, although those with even limited experience will wonder why Qu'Appelle's main engines did not cope with the emergency.

The public has every right to a full explanation, too, for it was the taxpayer who provided the cash for this $30,000,000 piece of equipment.

Kahn-Tineta Speaks

MISS KAHN-TINETA HORN, though an ardent campaigner for Indian rights in Canada, does not enjoy the full support of all Indians across the country. This is understandable because most Indian spokesmen are gentlemen and Miss Horn says things no gentleman would dare to say.

And certainly many of her statements are outrageous. But, at the same time, she makes her point well by revealing the bitterness of her people, by recalling the shabby treatment meted out to the Indians throughout our history and by reminding Canadians that Canada is not simply a country neatly divided into two parts—one inhabited by English-speaking white Canadians and the other by French-speaking white Canadians.

The things Miss Horn said had to be said. Not because they were necessarily true in every case but because they might succeed in joggling the consciences of white Canadians. Her outspokenness might even make the descendants of the two so-called founding races patch up their imagined grievances and get down to becoming Canadians along with the Indians.

It is possible that her words will introduce an awareness of the sins we have committed—and continue to commit—against those whose ancestors were the original inhabitants of this great country and encourage the desire to make amends in a practical and dignified way.

Thank you, Miss Horn, for kicking us where it hurts. Please continue, you might even wake us up.

Japanese Are Pioneers

Sea Cultivation to Feed the World

By DR. ARNOLD TOYNBEE

ALONG the coasts of Denmark and Peru, and also in Japan, immense dumps of seaweeds bear witness to a vast span of time over which early man kept himself going by food-gathering in this way. Then, some 8,000 or 10,000 years ago, a precocious minority of mankind made the cleverest and most lucrative technological and economic revolution so far: they began to cultivate edible plants instead of just gathering those that nature provided, and to domesticate and breed edible animals instead of just hunting them.

This enabled Neolithic man not only to be fruitful, but to multiply and inherit the earth. Specially, however, the range of agriculture and livestock husbandry has since been confined to that minor part of the planet's surface which is dry land. In fishing man is still in the hunting stage of economy. Today, however, we are on the eve of cultivating and stocking the sea, and this coming second great leap forward in increasing man's food supply is timely, because we are now experiencing a population explosion that dwarfs the Neolithic Age one.

We cannot forecast how many times greater the world's population will be by the time family planning has been adopted universally. We can be sure, however, that the permanent increase will be stupendous. This means that we shall have to increase the volume of the planet's food production to a proportionate degree; and this in turn, means that we shall have to do in the sea what we have been doing on land for the past 8,000 to 10,000 years. We shall have to change over at sea from food-gathering and hunting to the cultivation of edible sea plants and the breeding of edible fish. If we accomplish this, we can make the sea produce food for human consumption in quantities that will be far greater than the maximum that we can hope ever to produce by cultivating and stocking dry land.

Cultivation and breeding are now being carried into the sea from fresh-water and from dry land; and in this huge potential extension of our sources of artificially-produced food, the Japanese have been pioneers.

This is no accident, for Japan is the country in which the pressure of an increasing population on a rigidly limited amount of productive dry land has made itself felt the most severely so far.

Only a small part of the land-surface of Japan is cultivable, and this is rapidly being buried under houses and factories. This is why the Japanese fishing industry is already the most enterprising in the world. Japanese fishing-fleets now operate, all the year round, in all the Seven Seas.

But the Japanese have realized that they must change over, at sea too, from food-gathering and hunting to cultivation and breeding. A glimpse of the present Japanese pioneer work is, therefore, fascinating and heartening for anyone who is seriously concerned for mankind's future.

My wife and I last month had a glimpse of the cultivation of edible seaweed at Wakayama, and next day saw the breeding of an edible sea-fish — at the Kinki University yellowtail fish-breeding experimental station at Shirahama.

Since 1883 the Japanese have been experimenting in the artificial fertilization of fish-eggs. A female yellow-tail, we were told, will produce about one million eggs in her lifetime; but, under natural conditions, only three, on the average, will survive to grow into adult fish able to reproduce their species in their turn. If the eggs are artificially fertilized, and if the progeny is then protected from predators, 100,000 eggs out of the million instead of just three, will be fertilized and will also survive. If these artificially generated fish can be nursed to maturity by human art.

These artificially generated fish will now be penned and fed. The pens are nets, with a small enough mesh to prevent the flock from getting out and marine predators from getting in. Another net over the top protects the flock from being swooped down upon by hungry gulls.

The sea will have to be kept free from contamination by the poisonous waste-products of industrial processes on land. When "atoms for peace" come to be used in industry on a colossal scale, the saving of the sea from being poisoned will become one of the world's biggest and most urgent practical problems. No doubt this problem is solvable, but only if the 125 local sovereign states agree to set up a world authority, endowed with overriding powers, to take the problem in hand.

Hitherto, the sea has been a no-man's-land outside the three-mile or 12-mile or 200-mile wide zone that this or that local state has claimed for its territorial waters. It is now going to become mankind's common patrimony — a productive liquid field that will save the polluting human race from starvation. The traditional claims of local sovereign states will have to yield to mankind's common need. The population explosion requires the cultivation and stocking of the sea, and this, in its turn, requires the establishment of a world-government with the world-encompassing ocean as its public property. This is an asset that will give a world-government effective power.

Washington Calling

The President's Advantage

By MARQUIS CHILDS

As a president in office in an election year Lyndon Johnson is out to demonstrate how he can dominate the news and keep attention focused on the man doing the job. Such is the enormously expanded power of the presidency that this advantage cannot be exaggerated.

Beginning with the State of the Union message a stream of recommendations, statements and exhortations will pour from the White House. These are not merely the speeches or white papers of a candidate for office. They are official papers commanding the headlines.

In foreign policy the authority of the chief executive carries the same weight. Already preliminary planning is beginning for an Asian summit to be held probably in early April. Annoyed by the belittling of his Christmas round-the-world trip by much of the press, the president is said to gloat over his upward rise in the polls. He attributes this to going where the action is.

Early next spring he will be on the television screens again demonstrating his devotion to the defence of freedom in Asia. And a third visit to the troops in Vietnam will beyond doubt be on the schedule of a jet-propelled president.

The foreign ministers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization are to meet in Wellington, New Zealand, on April 2. After they have met for three days, it is now contemplated, heads of government of five or six of the SEATO powers will make a full-dress summit. Australia, the United States, Thailand and the Philippines will be represented as well as New Zealand and possibly Britain, too. It will be an opportune occasion to foresee the successful conclusion of the war in X months and to underscore the promise of the Saigon government for long-neglected reforms.

Both on the domestic and the foreign side 1968 will be for the president the year of the big promise. The promissory notes will not fall due until 1969, since the shadow of a record budgetary deficit and the urgent need to stop the serious outflow of the dollar overshadow the current year.

The president will recommend a large-scale plan for reshaping the cities and breaking the barriers of the ghettos. The plan will lean heavily, according to advance indications, on private enterprise to carry a sizable part of the load with tax incentives as the carrot. He pledged in his television interview in December that if private enterprise failed to absorb the jobless in the slums the government would become the employer of last resort.

This implies very large government expenditures. But a test of the Johnson plan enlisting the corporations in the war on poverty would not be conclusive. If Congress goes along with the proposal, until after the election in November. The commission on riots headed by Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois will make a first report after March 1. Presumably the president will anticipate the commission's grim findings with a wide-ranging program. While the chief executive can create news and often take the play away from his challengers, he cannot forestall bad news. New outbreaks of urban rioting — what dire prophets foresee as a form of guerrilla warfare — would present Johnson with horrendous choices. He would surely have to call on federal troops to prevent loss of life and destruction of property. The prospect of an urban ghetto cordoned off for an indefinite period in a kind of apartheid can hardly cheer the executive on whose shoulders the heaviest responsibility falls. Dick Gregory, one of the more flamboyant civil rights leaders, said the other day that unless certain demands are met in Chicago he will lead demonstrations making it impossible to hold the Democratic national convention in that city in August.

Similarly in foreign policy the president can lead but he cannot anticipate reverses. Great pressure is being put on the South Vietnamese government to demonstrate reform and pacification and, above all, to show what the South Vietnamese army can do. American officials are pressured to come up with hopeful reports.

One thing is sure — at home and abroad the president will be both literally and figuratively all over the place. His swinging impact as a newsmaker cannot be discounted.

I Beg to Differ...

Fast Time for Winter Too

By FRANK LOWE

FOR the next few months, as Liberals hot up their leadership race, the air from coast to coast will bulge with schemes put forward by candidates determined to prove, at least verbally, that they know how to keep Canada intact.

So it is probably somewhat brassy of me to step forward and say that I, too, have a plan for keeping Canada both united and sane. A very simple plan. All Canada really needs, or so I believe, is to have Daylight Saving Time 12 months a year. My feeling is that Canadians get tense and edgy and downright cross during January and February. Much of this, of course, is due to snow and cold. But an even greater contributor to this general UGGGGH feeling is the lack of daylight.

All some sane government has to do is rule that Daylight

Saving Time will be with us all winter long. I have a very good reason for advocating this. The reason involves the fact that I hate those days when it is still dark, and go home after work when it is dark.

All this blackness, frankly, gets me down. My spirits droop. In fact, according to people who know me, I tend to become cantankerous. Personally, I feel that many other Canadians share this January-February cantankerousness (is that a word?) with me.

But if Daylight Saving Time was in effect during the winter, all this would change. Mind you, people would still have to get up in the dark — in fact, it would be a deeper dark because of the clock being pushed forward an hour. But after a day's work — what a difference. A fellow would step out onto a street still well lighted.

Even a confirmed winter-hater would feel a little better about life. A smidgin of sunshine, even cold sunshine, is a tonic few cases of grouchesness can resist.

In no time, I am sure, with this treatment Canadians would start to smile (at least occasionally) again. I mean, they would smile Monday through Friday, not just on the weekends.

Mind you, I am not sufficiently Pollyanna to think that a smile cures everything. But a smile certainly never made anything worse.

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonial Ottawa Bureau

IN what had to be his actual announcement of his candidacy for the Liberal leadership, Finance Minister Sharp flipped over the separatist coin.

Turned it to what the federal government more and more seemed to consider the English side.

And he did it before several hundred of the leaders of the powerful Toronto commercial community... regarded by the federal mandarins as the English opposite to the elite French establishment in Montreal.

It was in a talk just 10 days ago to an uppermost-crust luncheon with a guest list that read like who's who in that financial capital of English Canada.

He told these movers and shakers of the business, industrial and investment community to stop thinking of "the costs of separatism in economic terms, in dollars and cents."

Much more than mere money was involved, he counselled, for if dollars alone were at stake, we'd all be a lot better off financially if we joined the United States.

In the balance ultimately, he went on, was the very existence of Canada as a confederation of 10 provinces and two territories. He must believe it, too, since he was as good as taking his political life — and his hopes of being prime minister — in his hands in pleading what clearly was the case for Quebec.

There had to be equality of French with English, of the Quebec minority with the nine English province majority, "real equality," he specified, "in politics, business, industry, community life," and most of all "in language."

The essential first step in the equating of the two races must be taken in Ottawa, a national capital he categorized as "still, after 100 years, basically an English-speaking city where French-Canadians do not feel quite at home."

(Although in the junior ranks of the federal civil service they are more than equal, drawing a 7 per cent salary bonus as bilinguals.)

Now Mitchell Sharp was really saying nothing new. It had all been said before. By Prime Minister Pearson among others, in the federal cabinet.

In fact, the PM, in his "oh, for goodness sake" manner, had even gone so far as to speak of what he called "English extremists — English separatists."

So it was not so much what Mitchell Sharp said as where he said it. Right there in the very heartland of "Boomerland," as its boosters like to call it, the capital, in fact, the command post of a growing segment of English-Canadian public reaction to Quebec.

A reaction of "extremism," as the prime minister might put it, that says "the hell with 'em, let 'em go, and be damned to 'em."

You don't hear much about it — yet — because those who are concerned about it are so deeply troubled they talk in whispers.

But you hear from some of the MPs from Metro-Toronto, the 25 or so constituencies between Ottawa and Oakville, that a stunningly large number of the community's leaders are talking about it being less costly to let Quebec go than pay the price of Canadian appeasement, and only good sense to speed the parting of a province that not only is slowly destroying its own economy but beginning to damage the rest of Canada's too.

For one thing, they argue, separation would relieve the "haves" in the provincial family, Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta, of paying the shot for the current annual $11 million in tax transfer payments — just about 41 per cent of the total for all the provinces — that Quebec draws through the federal treasury.

Quebec's slice was almost doubled by last March's federal-provincial tax deal.

The extremists among the "let 'em go" advocates, report the Toronto MPs, say that apart from the big Quebec stakes of the CPR, Bell Telephone, Sun Life and Bank of Montreal, English-Canadians would lose little by way of investment if French Canada was allowed.

Soviet 'Purge' of Ukrainians Continues

By PETER WORTHINGTON

This year, 1968, has been designated by the United Nations as Human Rights Year.

It is a year in which special attention will be drawn to the plight of persecuted and oppressed people everywhere.

In light of this, it somehow seems appropriate the fate of Ukrainian intellectuals should be exposed — individuals who are now serving sentences in Soviet labor camps for allegedly spreading anti-Soviet propaganda.

For the past couple of years there have been rumors about a "purge" of Ukrainian nationalists, as well as a general crackdown on rebel poets and writers of the U.S.S.R.

One of the most eloquent testimonials of the injustices comes from a former Young Communist League secretary, Vyacheslav Chornovil, who managed to smuggle material to the West — before he, too, was sentenced last November to three years in a hard labor camp.

Chornovil's remarkable manuscript will be published in book form. Its tentative title: Portraits of Twenty 'Criminals'.

It is a long, at times laborious and detailed document based on Soviet law, the constitution and the sacred word of Lenin.

There are curious blanks however — due in part to the fact that all the trials were secret, without outside witnesses.

Chornovil attended some of the trials in an official capacity — as a Kiev television representative. When disillusionment with Soviet justice set in as a result of what he saw, he began gathering material — letters from the prisoners, petitions, transcripts.

It may not be Canada's business to interfere in the affairs of another country. Yet without taking sides or becoming actively involved, there is almost a duty to expose the situation which currently exists — based on evidence which is incontrovertible.

Chornovil gives details of the 20, all of whom were guilty of the same charge: Spreading anti-Soviet propaganda.

This seems a euphemism for being excessively nationalistic.

Take the case of Mikhailo Masluko, a teacher-pensioner from Lvov, in the western Ukraine.

His trial was so secret that no one knew the verdict — not even his wife, who was eventually informed by his defence attorney.

Masluko refused to confess to being the author of 10 anonymous and allegedly anti-Soviet articles. After several months of "interrogation", the KGB (secret police), could not extract a confession. This in itself is unusual.

So a team of "experts" testified he was guilty.

Masluko got six years — the first three of which must be served in solitary confinement.

Chornovil says it recalls the trials in Stalin's time "when a rabbit was forced to admit that he was a camel."

"This is perhaps the most brutal trial out of the whole series of arrests and trials of the past few months", wrote Chornovil. "In pure cynicism perhaps only the case of Karavansky (who was returned to a labor camp without trial to complete nine years of his 25-year sentence, after he had been free for five years), can be compared to it."

"Masluko's trial showed that, similarly as in the past, it is possible now to get even with a person by way of charging him with the most absurd offences."

The case of Mikhailo Horyn, 37, a scientist of Lvov's Laboratory of Psychology of Work, is especially curious. Apparently he was not even allowed a lawyer at his secret trial.

His final plea before being sentenced expressed what most others obviously felt.

Protesting he was not anti-Soviet, only pro-Ukrainian, he asked that: Soviet law not be violated by authorities, that Ukrainian language not be discriminated against, that those on collective farms not be oppressed, and finally that there be no return to the methods of Stalin.

Of Stalin's time he said: "I was always revolted by the fact that citizens and party members with a sense of duty could witness a crime and do nothing about it."

"Under the influence of reprisals the great majority of the working masses ceased to take part in political life. Politics was mainly concocted in the kitchen of Stalin who, according to Lenin, liked 'spicy dishes'."

He continued: "Remnants of Stalinism still exist in our public and political life. This spirit ought to be rejected, and the working masses drawn into political life ..."

"It is a great pity that the people responsible for those crimes, who allowed such injustices against humanity to be committed in hard labor camps in the north, far east and central Asia, are now receiving government pensions. They do not have to answer for their crimes, and are not even being publicly exposed."

The court's "sober and impartial" decision was that Mikhailov Horyn should spend six years at hard labor.

There are the letters of artist Panas Zalivachka, 44, a Ukrainian who lived most of his life in Siberia. At age 34 he returned to the Ukraine for a visit and became interested in Ukrainian art and culture — much to his misfortune.

Despite one-man exhibitions, Zalivachka was accused of "lacking artistic talent" when he began dabbling in abstracts. He was eventually sentenced, after a secret trial, to three years for spreading anti-Soviet propaganda.

There is the story of medical student Yaroslav Hevrych, 30, who got five years after allowing three people to read "subversive writings" in his possession — his brother and his fiancée and her brother.

There is Bohdan Horich, 31, a philology graduate who was arrested while writing a

Johnson Raises Bomb Halt Price

President Lyndon Johnson appeared Wednesday to have increased his price for a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam.

In his state of the union address, he also appeared to be trying to shift the emphasis from a simple bombing pause to a "complete cessation of hostilities."

Johnson declared that his San Antonio formula of Sept. 29 still stood as a basis for considering the possible suspension of U.S. air attacks on the north. However, he reworded part of this formula to make more explicit U.S. insistence on a reciprocal lowering of Communist military activity.

He said, as he had at San Antonio, that U.S. bombing would stop "if talks would take place promptly and with reasonable hopes that they would be productive."

At San Antonio, he went on to say that he "assumed" the Communists would not take military advantage of the end of the bombing. But in his state of the union message he declared flatly that they "must not take advantage of our restraint as they have in the past."

"This nation simply cannot accept anything less without jeopardizing the lives of our men and our allies," Johnson said.

This in essence, has changed the San Antonio formula so that Johnson expects an assurance, not merely an assumption, on a reciprocal Communist military response.

The president declared that if peace talks could be established on the basis of his formula then the United States would talk with its allies on bringing about a "complete cessation of hostilities" as the first order of business. This was an effort to broaden the negotiating framework and take some of the spotlight off the American bombing.

It represented, in effect, a return to a formula Johnson and Secretary Dean Rusk worked out as a counter-proposal a year ago when UN Secretary General U Thant was pressing for a bombing suspension and immediate peace talks.

The tone of Johnson's Vietnam remarks, as well as background comments from high officials, indicated that the U.S. administration still feels that Hanoi's Dec. 30 declaration that "it will hold talks" if the bombing stops was probably just a propaganda move.

One official, when asked why the "complete cessation of hostilities" had been put forward again, said it was an invitation to Hanoi to offer some reciprocal military reduction to prove the sincerity of its professed desire for talks.

It was clear the White House is far from convinced of that sincerity.

Vital Document Examines Vietnam Situation

The Bermuda Alternative

By JOSEPH KRAFT from Washington

Quietly circulating around the highest levels of government these days is a vital document on Vietnam known as the Bermuda Paper. It is a vital document primarily because it sets up against current policy a coherent and comprehensive alternative.

The Bermuda Paper was put together at a meeting held in Bermuda last month under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Among those who drew up the report were General Matthew Ridgway, army chief of staff in the Eisenhower administration; Ambassador Charles Yost, former deputy to Arthur Goldberg and Adlai Stevenson in the American mission to the United Nations; Roger Hillsman, former assistant secretary of state for the Far East; and former White House aide Richard Neustadt.

The chairman of the group was the head of the Carnegie Endowment, Joseph E. Johnson — an old associate of Secretary of State Dean Rusk. Favoring the recommendation in all but one particular was former deputy secretary of defense to Robert McNamara, Roswell Gilpatric.

The implicit starting point of the Bermuda Paper is the set of alternatives set up by the administration on Vietnam. The choice, as President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk constantly define it, is between quitting or following their line, pulling out or persisting.

The Bermuda group sets up a different set of alternatives. It sets up a choice between deliberately limiting the war on the one hand or allowing it to widen on the other hand.

Given that choice, the Bermuda group defines exactly the danger of creeping escalation, and condemns it. As to the danger, the report says:

"If we were to pursue present objectives by widening the war, as by ground probes into Laos and Cambodia, our commitments containing the conflict. As a basis for the program, it asserts the unilateral American interest, not the probably vain hope of winning early negotiations from the other side.

The report says: "The United States should modify its strategy so that it can defend South Vietnam without surrender and without increasing the risks of a wider war. United States policy should not be dependent on Hanoi's decisions."

ation, but mainly to shift international pressure for concessions from Washington to Hanoi.

In the event, the other side uses the suspension of bombing for massive re-supply efforts, the report asserts that "bombing of infiltration routes could be resumed, with the prospect of increased political support."

Finally there are two political points. The Bermuda Paper calls for stepped-up pressure on the Saigon government "to assume greater and greater responsibility... for the defence and pacification of the country." Of the Vietcong insurgents, or National Liberation Front, it says:

"The risks of attempting to cope with the National Liberation Front primarily by military means on a long-term basis, although real, are less than the risks for the United States of persisting in an indefinitely prolonged attempt to destroy the National Liberation Front."

One of the surprising features of the circulation of the Bermuda Paper is that it has not bothered many people. Very few of the civilian authorities are in substantial disagreement with its recommendations.

To be sure, President Johnson and his immediate entourage are probably too committed to the Westmoreland strategy to turn around now. But that only defines the opportunity which would be open to a new administration.

BACKGROUND

would escalate along with our risks, and the next step could be an invasion of North Vietnam. It seems most unlikely that widening the war, and particularly invading North Vietnam, would lead to military victory or shorten the war.

"Rather," the report continues, "this would heighten the possibility of direct Chinese and Soviet intervention, further alienate friendly and neutral nations... deepen divisions inside the United States and curtail programs essential to our domestic tranquility."

Having rejected the policy of allowing the war to expand step by step, the Bermuda group sets up a program for

As to the program, the first point is a recommendation that the United States shape its military effort on the ground in South Vietnam in a way that works to reduce the levels of violence.

That means a shift away from General Westmoreland's strategy of going after all concentrations of enemy troops — even in well-defended positions at the fringes of the country along the border with Laos and Cambodia and the buffer zone with North Vietnam.

Secondly, the report calls for stopping the bombing of the North — not in order to obtain a military quid pro quo, nor in the expectation that it would lead to negoti-history of Ukrainian art of the 1920s and 1930s. He is now learning to become a cabinet-maker, though he has an eye disease and is slowly going blind. He has four years to serve.

There is Nikola Horyn, 39, a geophysicist and the brother of Mikhailo. He got three years. There is Dmitro Ivaschenko, a wounded and decorated war veteran who was a teacher and literary editor. He got two years.

And the list of names grows, names that may mean nothing in Canada but which have become symbols to many Ukrainians.

Motor Giant For Britain

Business Topics

LONDON (AP)—Britain's biggest automobile manufacturer and biggest truck-maker announced Wednesday their intention of merging in a multi-million-dollar deal to form what is expected to be Europe's largest motor-making giant.

The new corporation, to be called the British Leyland Motor Corp., will control assets of £289,000,000 ($751,000,000).

The merger, rumored for some time, brings together British Motor Holdings and the Leyland group. BMH manufactures Austin, Morris, Singer, Jaguar, Daimler, Riley and Wolseley cars.

An announcement by the two companies said the merger will be carried out through a straight swap of one share of BMH or Leyland stock for one share in the new corporation.

LONDON (Reuters)—British Ford said Tuesday it's changing the name of its Anglia car to Escort. The car will be assembled from British-made parts in Belgium to give it direct access to the Common Market. The company said it dropped the name Anglia because it was too English-sounding for Europeans.

DETROIT (AP)—Major U.S. car companies had no immediate comment Wednesday on a report by Dow Jones, a financial news service, that they have been raising prices on car parts they sell to franchised dealers.

Dow Jones said the price increases began quietly after Ford Motor Co. increased some of its parts prices Nov. 1. It said a second round of Ford increases came Jan. 1. The increases averaged 4 to 5 per cent and covered more than half of Ford's line.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's Index of industrial production rose strongly in November after a three-month standstill. A 6.6-point gain to 268.9 was reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics Wednesday, due mainly to a manufacturing surge.

During the month output of motor vehicles jumped 33 per cent, iron and steel products were up 7 per cent and wood products 3 per cent.

NEW YORK (AP)—Time Inc. has agreed in principle to acquire Little, Brown and Co., the two publishing companies said Tuesday.

Time Inc. President James Linen said his company would issue 170,000 shares of common stock for Little, Brown, which would be operated as a separate, wholly-owned subsidiary with its present management. The acquisition is subject to a formal agreement and approval of directors of both companies and stockholders of Little, Brown.

TORONTO (CP)—Canada faces an immediate economic challenge in the "alarming escalation of costs, prices and interest rates," the Prudential Insurance Co. of America says in its annual Canadian economic forecast.

The company sees a rise of 7.5 per cent in the gross national product this year, to $68,500,000,000 from $61,800,000,000 in 1967, but says prices will account for about half the increase.

Prudential says cost rises at a time of rising unemployment could turn into a critical employment problem.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Westinghouse Electric Corp. said Tuesday it has suspended manufacture of its Marketeer 1

Logging Industry

Executive Fears Foreign Control

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bruce Welch, Truck Loggers Association president, said Wednesday the logging industry should be wary of foreign control.

Mr. Welch made the comment at an opening session of the association convention when he called for a set minimum figure British Columbia lumber producers be allowed to export.

"This would allow us to set up an assured market and Japan an assured supply," he said.

Otherwise, Japan would be forced to buy into the B.C. logging industry to ensure a timber supply, he said.

"It may be much harder for the forest service to control 1,000 small businesses than 25 big ones, but is it good for B.C. to have our economy so controlled by so few?" he asked. "We need foreign capital to develop our large industries such as pulp mills, but in the basic industrial part of our business, and I mean logging, this can be handled perhaps better by smaller individual Canadian businessmen.

"Let us try to keep our raw materials in Canadian hands if possible."

He warned that the current indefinite policy toward exporting timber to Japan could lead to foreign control and suggested a minimum of 100,000,000 board feet of timber for export be set, only 1 per cent of total production. He said the figure should be varied upward on advice of an export advisory committee.

TIMBER SUPPLY

Otherwise, Japan would be forced to buy into the B.C. logging industry to ensure a timber supply, he said.

"It may be much harder for the forest service to control 1,000 small businesses than 25 big ones, but is it good for B.C. to have our economy so controlled by so few?" he asked. "We need foreign capital to develop our large industries such as pulp mills, but in the basic industrial part of our business, and I mean logging, this

Cash Market Opens Door

VANCOUVER (CP)—A cash market for commodities other than grain was opened for import-export traders Wednesday by the Vancouver Merchants Exchange.

William A. Stankey, exchange secretary-manager, says the market was opened to handle board lots of commodities that do not pass through the Vancouver Grain Exchange.

"It will also handle most of the oil seeds — rapeseed and flax," he said in an interview. "We hope it will generate new business, but we have no idea at all how much."

Mr. Stankey said the cash market will move business, handled now by individual brokers, on to the exchange floor.

Previously, an interested buyer might not know a commodity was for sale unless he was approached by the broker. "Now the commodity will be up for all exchange members and it will help to establish prices," Mr. Stankey said.

Initially, after several dry runs last week and early this week, the market will operate 15 minutes daily "right after the close of the Winnipeg market."

The market is a new venture of the merchants exchange, in operation 47 years here to regulate trading and business between its more than 220 members and others on equitable principles.

Work of the exchange, which also acts as an arbiter of commercial disputes, virtually affects the economy of Vancouver and the province, and reaches eastward to touch exporters and importers. Very little can happen in the port of Vancouver without it involving at least one of the exchange members.

Mr. Stankey, who started in the exchange in 1925 as an office boy, is the man who keeps it all running and who is spokesman for all its organizations.

Arrows Find Mark in Victoria

By GEORGE INGLIS

There definitely was a Robin Hood — bow, buskin, bravery and all.

This is the solemn-faced assertion of Fred Usher, a man of no mean veracity, and one who is in part responsible for the recent upsurge in interest in the ancient sport of archery in the Greater Victoria area.

Mr. Usher has a genealogical table tracing descendants of the great archer of Nottingham Forest who drew his bow in defence of the lowly, oppressed by the Sheriff of Nottingham Forest.

But Mr. Usher, president of the Victoria Bowmen and Dockyard Archers Club and past president of the B.C. Archers' Association, is more interested in bringing the sport to present-day enthusiasts than in tracing the past.

He and other experienced archers took a good look at themselves recently and decided they were enjoying their sport too selfishly, so "we decided to spread out."

And last week, the first day of a "labor of love" course for interested archery tyros, there were 16 candidates — more than half the number of the regular club membership.

"I was amazed," Mr. Usher said, "and we realized we should have done this long ago."

The sport is comparatively simple to start — a newcomer can be hitting the target on the short range within an afternoon. After that, it becomes an individual struggle for the self-discipline, body control and concentration needed to excel in the sport.

One of the best examples of what can be done with perseverance is the way Bill

Hall shot his way to the club's outdoor championship within his first six months in the sport, and placed among the top 16 archers in Canada.

"Of course, it took me five nights a week for a whole month before the championship," Mr. Hall said.

The sport is not limited to any special age, either, ranging from teenagers to the club's veteran, 72-year-old Jamie Cameron. Today's bow is a masterpiece of engineering, a far cry from the yew longbow that gave the English longbowman his fame.

In fact, today's bow is modelled more after the Turkish bow, with a recurved limb that the Turks, the world's greatest bowmen, made history with before the feats of Crecy and Agincourt were written into British history.

One of the top bows, made by the Bear Archery Company in Grayling, Mich., has fibreglass limbs in the recurved shape, a handle of bubinga wood from South Africa, and plastic trim. Stripped of all extras, it sells for about $150.

A bowman may be fully equipped for as little as $25, or his equipment may run into hundreds of dollars. Experienced bowmen suggest the tyro discuss the subject fully with a veteran before purchasing.

Target arrows are made of fibreglass or aluminum, with the beginners advised to use the fibreglass. Aluminum flies faster but must be fired truer to score well.

The toxophilite (archer to you) should be able, when he is extremely proficient, to cast an arrow 10 yards per pound of the bow's pull. The Pacific Northwestern record of 650 yards, 2 feet, 10 inches is held by Art Williams of Ladysmith — but a California bowman recently shot more than 800 yards.

There are about 65 in Greater Victoria, in the Victoria Bowmen-Dockyard Archers, the Seaview Archers and the Methosin Bowmen.

The combined Victoria-Dockyard club shoots in the Dockyard Recreation Centre building on Admirals, with lessons for beginners (and there is room for more) being given at 2 p.m. Sundays.

In the summer, the club shoots at its regular field course on National Defence property at Wilfred Road in Colwood.

And on Sunday, Jan. 28, the club will stage its mud-and-mire shoot on the outdoor range, an annual event.

This year the club will join with the Seaview Archers to co-host the B.C. championships on Labor Day. The Vancouver Island championships are July 1, and the Pacific Northwest championships the third weekend in July.

Victorians interested in taking up the sport may turn out at the recreation centre at 2 p.m. on a Sunday, or may contact one of the club executives:

President, Mr. Usher; vice-president, Stewart Pringle; secretary, Leona Owen; field captain, Mr. Hall; target captain, Peter Muir; historian, Robert Copeman; social convener, Adele Bishop.

Post-Tet Drive Suspected Near Border

Westmoreland

SAIGON (AP) — Gen. William Westmoreland said Wednesday a major renewal of Communist military activity can be expected soon, though the Communists "seem to have temporarily run out of steam."

The commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam expressed belief in an interview the next major campaign will develop in South Vietnam's northern provinces just south of the so-called demilitarized zone which separates North and South Vietnam.

ALLIED SHIELD

U.S. bombers and marine battalions form the major allied shield there against a mass invasion from the North.

The ground war in South Vietnam is in one of its periodic lulls after heavy fighting the last two weeks.

Westmoreland said he anticipates "a resurgence of enemy initiatives just before or after Tet, the Vietnamese lunar new year on Jan. 30."

EMOTIONAL TIME

"Most of the Communist initiatives have political motives," he added. "Tet is an emotional time when families and friends gather. Any display of strength would benefit the enemy both psychologically and politically."

Normally the periods just before or after Tet are marked by a decrease in military activity on both sides. It is the most important holiday of the year for the Vietnamese people.

SEVEN DAYS

The Viet Cong guerrillas have proclaimed their intention to observe a seven-day ceasefire. The Saigon government and its allies, who consider the Communists benefit from any extended stand-down through uninhibited movement of troops and supplies, have announced they will observe a 48-hour truce.

NEAR BASE

Westmoreland said there has been increased Communist activity in the area of Khe Sanh, a U.S. marine base in the northwest corner of South Vietnam.

Asked about reports of increased Communist movements south through the Communist-held eastern sector of Laos during the current dry season, Westmoreland said: "There is considerable activity in Laos. There is a lot of truck movement, more than in previous years. They are moving ammunition, perhaps some troops. Troops are moving on foot, too."

PILOTS ON TARGET

U.S. pilots flew 117 missions over North Vietnam Tuesday. Railway tracks, bridges and missile sites were among the targets.

The U.S. command announced that an air force F-4 Phantom was downed in North Vietnam's southern panhandle by "unknown causes."

CREW RESCUED

The two crew members were rescued. The Phantom was the 78th U.S. warplane officially listed by the Americans as lost in combat over the North.

North Vietnam said in a broadcast dispatch that another Phantom was shot down Wednesday. There was no American comment.

Limited Bombing Endorsed

CANBERRA (AP) — Australia's new prime minister, John Gorton, told a news conference Wednesday he would strongly oppose an increase of U.S. bombing that would lead to the virtual destruction of North Vietnam.

But he said he supports the present U.S. policy of bombing to prevent movement of troops and supplies to South Vietnam.

U.S. Advice

Prisoner Swap Peace Prelude?

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. has urged North Vietnam to release South Vietnamese prisoners of war in hopes Hanoi will reciprocate by returning some of the more than 200 Americans believed held as war prisoners, informed sources said Wednesday.

The North Vietnamese are known to hold about 200 U.S. airmen downed in raids over the north with others listed as missing and possibly in Communist hands. The Viet Cong is believed to hold at least a score

Hanoi-Led Red Forces Rout Laotian Troops

VIENTIANE, Laos (LAT) — The magnitude of the defeat earlier this week of American-backed Laotian government forces by Communist troops in the northern valley of Nam Bac was learned from authoritative sources here Wednesday.

There are 2,500 government troops missing five days after the battle. Only 700 men have straggled back to government bases. Some were flown out and others hiked over rugged terrain 60 miles from Nam Bac to the royal capital city of Luang Prabang.

Summit Likely For Ottawa

LONDON (AP) — British informants Wednesday night reported moves for a summit conference of Commonwealth premiers — possibly in Ottawa — to discuss closer economic co-operation, the Rhodesian problem and other issues.

One object of the meeting would be to inject new life into the Commonwealth concept following Britain's decision to quit her bases east of Suez by the end of 1971.

The move for such a meeting was reported initiated by the Commonwealth secretary-general, Arnold Smith, a Canadian.

Some Commonwealth leaders were said to feel it would be a pleasant gesture to stage the meeting in Ottawa in the final phase of Prime Minister Pearson's career.

Pearson, who has announced his decision to retire, is widely regarded by white and non-white Commonwealth states as one of the stalwarts of their association.

Tax Warning Settles U.K. Market

LONDON (AP) — Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, has warned that runaway wages and profits would be taxed away by the Labor government lest they imperil the benefits of Britain's devaluation of the pound.

"The faster money incomes increase, the harsher must be the tax increases," Jenkins told the House of Commons Wednesday at the start of a two-day debate on the government's economy package ushering in a historic shift in Britain's world role and its welfare state.

The threat of taxes followed the swing of the economy axe Tuesday by Prime Minister Wilson. Jenkins said the two must go together to keep the economy in balance so it can concentrate on exports.

FINANCIAL CALM

His speech, foreshadowed in a nationwide television broadcast he made Tuesday night, restored calm to London's financial district. The financial community, now deeply suspicious of the Labor government, had thought the spending cuts announced Tuesday by Wilson would be all — and that they would not be enough.

The pound had slumped Tuesday and The Financial Times stock index jumped a record 19.3 points. But Wednesday, the pound rose again and the stock index dropped back 10.9 points.

There was some criticism from British financial commentators that the new taxes should have been announced with the spending cuts. Jenkins responded to this somewhat by moving forward the annual budget and tax message to March 19 from April. But he still refused to de-

Jenkins indicated he also is willing to give the unions a chance to limit their wage demands voluntarily before stamping on them with the punitive taxation he warned of. Just before he spoke, the general council of the Trades Union Congress announced it would help to the government's guideline of a maximum 3½ per cent for wage increases this year.

This guideline provides a margin inside the limits for the economy set by Jenkins.

LIMIT HELD

He said the government would hold expansion to 4 per cent this year and next.

With the cuts announced by Prime Minister Wilson Tuesday — £300,000,000 ($780,000,000) during the fiscal year starting this June — Jenkins said government expenditure would be limited to a rise of 3½ per cent.

The following fiscal year, when further cuts of £415,000,000 ($1,072,000,000) take effect, the growth of government spending will be only one per cent, he said.

These moves, coupled with tax changes, are intended to shift £1,000,000,000 ($2,600,000,000) into export production within the next two years.

The economic debate winds up today with a vote on a Conservative no-confidence motion criticizing the government's decision to withdraw British troops from Southeast Asia and the Persian Gulf by 1971. The government's parliamentary majority seems in no danger.

Forests Revenue Down 20 Per Cent

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said Wednesday provincial government revenue from the forest industry is falling and B.C. plans action this spring to change the situation.

The minister did not spell out what action he had in mind, but said it means the government, representing the public, intends to get its "fair share."

Mr. Williston, in a speech to the British Columbia Truck Loggers Association convention, mentioned talk of a possible increase in government stumpage fees, the amount charged firms for cutting Crown timber.

"I have heard some concern expressed about paying more," he said. "What I am talking about is paying at least as much, for more."

He said government revenues are expected to fall about $10,000,000 short of estimates this year. Direct government revenue from timber moneys and logging taxes amount to about $54,000,000.

SIMILAR PERIOD

He said that at the end of 1967, about three-quarters of the way through fiscal 1967-68, timber sale revenue fell $5,200,000 below the similar period in the 1966-67 fiscal year. Such reductions cannot be permitted while increased cut continued, he said.

In a later interview, he said he would allow his comments to stand, but added: "The medicine is often more bitter in the contemplation than in the taking."

He said there are indications that "the decline in the industry's contribution to revenue could continue if some remedial action is not taken."

He said it is not the intention of the government to continue to permit declining revenue, then added:

"The methods of securing this revenue do not rest solely on government action alone. There is much the industry can do, not only to meet its obligations to the public but also to guarantee its own successful future."

Space Plans Cut

period and later for two 56-day periods.

Earlier this week it was learned that the first planned mission, designed to study the earth's natural resources, had been dropped.

Ironically, some 200 scientists and industry officials gathered at the Houston Manned Spaceflight Centre Friday to hear the report on a $135,000 study of equipment for the recommended advance moon exploration.

TWO WEEKS

This equipment includes delicate instruments, moon-roving tractors and lunar flying machines. Astronauts on these missions in the 1970s would have remained on the moon for up to two weeks at a time, compared with stays of a day and a half during the Apollo series itself.

The problem for both the second space station and the advanced moon exploration, as with many other American space projects, is a lack of money.

"This all was a reality when we were talking about a program that started at $500,000,000 the first year and moved to $900,000,000 the second and then $1,400,000,000 the third," said Robert Thompson, AA chief at the manned spaceflight centre.

AA's first actual funding, which came in the current fiscal year, was half the requested amount — about $25,000,000. Indications are its second year of funding also will be about half the originally planned amount or less, Thompson said.

"What comes out of this is fairly obvious," he said. "The firmest thing we are working on now shows five launches, the first (space station) cluster. The follow-on lunar program will not come along as soon as we originally planned. What we do see for follow-on lunar activity will look like stretched-out Apollo."

He said the current timetable calls for two launches in early 1970 — one placing three astronauts in orbit and the second putting up the top stage of a Saturn rocket in which they would create the space station. They would live in it for 28 days before returning to Earth.

The last thing you need after a hard day, is a restless night.

Like pacing the floor. Playing solitaire. Counting sheep. Or reading yourself to sleep.

There's something better that beats these and that's a hot soothing beverage. Like Ovaltine. The good night drink for people who find it hard to get to sleep at night.

Ovaltine's natural good flavour comes from the blending of barley malt, cocoa, milk and has a unique taste that no other drink in the world has.

Ovaltine contains vitamins A, C, Thiamin, Niacin, Iron, Phosphorus and Calcium.

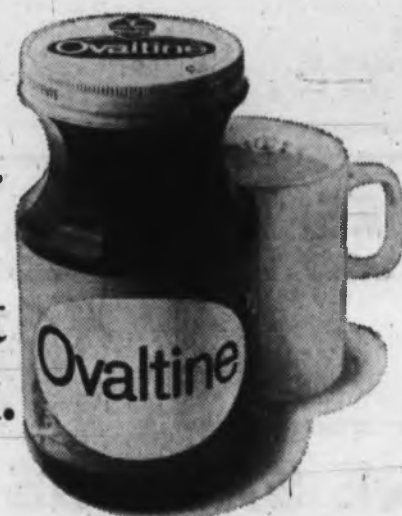

Natural Ovaltine is unsweetened. Swiss Chocolate Ovaltine is pre-sweetened.

Coddle a satisfying mug, you'll love it.

To-night and every night, just before bedtime, make a mug of hot Ovaltine. Then sleep on it.

It's just the thing after a hard day.

The good night drink.

Arabs Set For Pullout

BEIRUT (LAT) — Saudi Arabia and Bahrain Wednesday announced "full accord" on the continuation of security and stability in the oil-rich Persian Gulf.

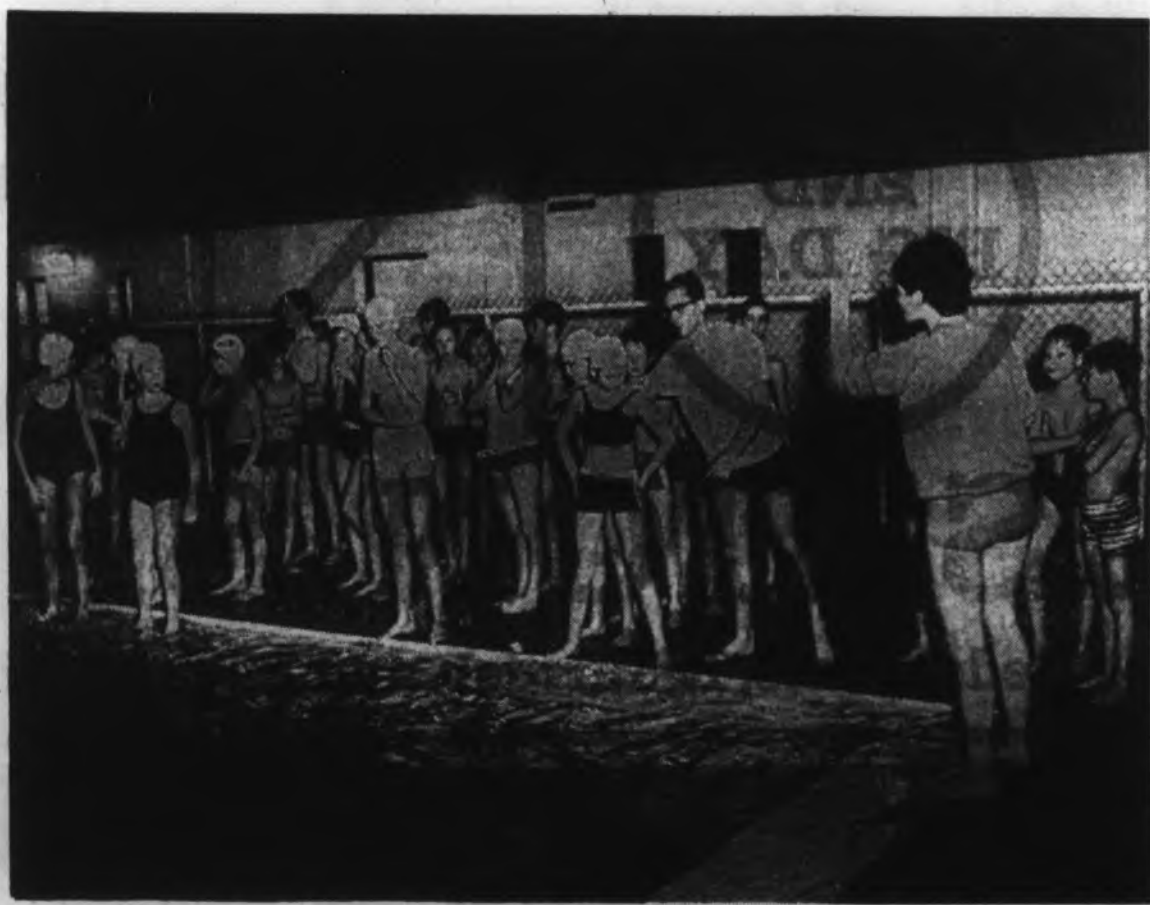

The declaration came in a joint communique by King Faisal and the ruler of Bahrain, Sheikh Issa Bin Salman Al-Khalifa, at the end of the latter's state visit to Faisal's desert kingdom. It followed by less than 24 hours the British government's announcement it will end its military responsibilities in the gulf by 1971.

ACTIVE BACKING

Faisal pledged "all-out support and active backing in all fields" to Bahrain, an oil sheikhdom consisting of several islands just 25 miles off the Saudi coast in the gulf. Bahrain is Britain's biggest military base in the gulf. It is also the home base of the U.S. military "presence" in the area — the single-ship Persian Gulf flotilla.

The announcement appeared to be a first move toward some form of regional security to fill the vacuum left when Britain's 6,000 troops in the gulf are pulled out.

tries form the free world's biggest oil resource, with 70 per cent of the proven oil reserves outside the Iron Curtain. All of the petty sheikhdoms are ruled along traditional lines, and some observers feel that the setting of a target date for British withdrawal could lead to an upsurge in revolutionary Arab nationalism, as it did in Aden.

Illegal Ballots Erase Vote

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench Wednesday declared the Turtle Mountain seat in the Manitoba legislature vacant, 18 months after Liberal Ed Dow won the constituency in a recount.

The victory margin was five ballots with Conservative incumbent Peter McDonald losing out.

But Mr. Justice Israel Nidkman and Mr. Justice James E. Wilson ruled "corrupt practice" and "irregularities" could have affected the outcome since 62 votes cast did not meet the requirements of the Election Act. The petition under the controversial Elections Act was signed by Charles McMeekin and Arthur Benge with the subsequent court ruling upsetting an election-day decision for the first time in 54 years.

Liberal leader Gil Molgat, who said the Liberal party was assessing its position, said he believed the last successful petition for upsetting an election was in about 1914.

NO SUGGESTION MADE

The judgment said there is no suggestion of any corrupt or irregular practices attached to Dow or any of his agents.

It adds that while returning officer Arthur Gordon McKnight was guilty of corrupt practices, "we are convinced that he was motivated by an honest desire to correct what he believed to be an unfortunate oversight on the part of the election enumerators and did not intentionally violate the law."

The judgment said 17 non-registered persons who cast ballots were not vouched for and 45 had only one voucher instead of the required two. The petition listed 21 non-registered voters as not being vouched for but four did not vote.

OUT OF IGNORANCE

Those voting with only one voucher did so out of ignorance of the law without a deliberate attempt to flout the law, it said.

The decision leaves the legislature standing: 31 Conservatives, 13 Liberals, 11 New Democrats, one Social Credit and one vacant.

Premier Walter Weir was not available for comment but the ruling, gives him a majority of five.

His majority had been four and in danger of being three if former Premier Duff Roblin resigned in Wolesey to seek a federal seat before the spring session of the legislature opens.

B.C. Group Backs Kierans

VANCOUVER (CP) — Art Phillips, chairman of the financial committee of the British Columbia Liberal party, said Wednesday he is heading a committee backing Quebec Liberal Eric Kierans for party leadership.

George Van Roggen, the party's federal campaign organizer, said last week he will chair a committee backing Paul Hellyer.

Party president Lawrence Jolivet said in a newsletter circulated this week: "I myself, as president of the party in B.C., will remain strictly neutral and will not support any candidate at the present time."

Turner Says Today

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Turner was to announce today whether he will run for the Liberal leadership.

If the 38-year-old minister enters the race, as he is expected to do, he will be the fifth man in. He has scheduled an Ottawa press conference for 9 a.m.

Already in are his cabinet colleagues, Paul Hellyer and Allan MacEachern, former Quebec cabinet minister Eric Kierans, and Rev. Lloyd Henderson, former mayor of Portage la Prairie, Man.

Finance Minister Sharp was to declare his candidacy tonight in Toronto and External Affairs Minister Martin was expected to formally enter Friday.

Turner has not been so obvious in organizational moves as some other undeclared contenders, but it would be a surprise if he decides not to run. The fact that he has called a news conference to declare his intentions three days before the start of the western Liberals policy conference in Winnipeg was seen as another indicator he plans to enter.

Only announced candidates are permitted to speak at the Winnipeg convention. This was a factor in bringing Sharp and Martin in early.

Huge Turnout Certain For Barbershoppers

It will be standing room only when the Victoria Barbershop Chorus and visiting artists perform Saturday at the McPherson Playhouse.

Medicare Daily Diet

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet met Wednesday to hammer out care and cabinet solidarity issues. There was no word to confirm speculation Pearson may make minor cabinet changes this week.

The cabinet committee dealing with the subject met in the morning and the full cabinet in the afternoon.

There was no indication the cabinet had started talk on maintenance of cabinet solidarity during the leadership campaign or on how to handle medicare.

EVERY DAY

Going into the afternoon session, Revenue Minister Benson was asked whether the medical care program would be discussed.

He joked: "Every day is medicare day."

Prime Minister Pearson presided over the cabinet sessions which were supposed to involve a second look at the national medical care program. Provincial objections have been raised to the scheduled introduction July 1.

Cabinet was scheduled to meet again today for a day-long session so there was plenty of

Coroner's Jury Finds:

Three Negligent In First Fatality

Three people were negligent in Victoria's first motor-vehicle fatality of the year, a coroner's jury decided Wednesday.

The jury found that the victim, Michael Cairney, 83, of 1319 1/2 Broad, was negligent in crossing Government Street near Pandora Saturday in direct contradiction of a city bylaw and by wearing dark clothing.

Mark Allan Thompson, owner of the car involved, was found negligent in not keeping up the maintenance of his car and for lending the car to an unlicensed person.

DEFECTIVE VEHICLE

Car driver Thomas E. Cronk, 990 Runnymede, was found by the jury, "after much deliberation," of being guilty of dangerous driving based on the fact that he took control of an "obviously defective vehicle."

Mr. Cronk testified that, while driving along Government, he had seen Mr. Cairney crossing the street right in front of him.

He said he hit the brake but it went right to the floor with no apparent effect. He applied the brake again but told Coroner Edmond Jorje de St. Jorje he was not sure whether it was before or after he hit Mr. Cairney.

Mr. Thompson said he had the car in a garage to check the brakes but under questioning said there was no competent mechanic on hand and there had been no charge.

CHANCE TO DRIVE

When asked by Mr. St. Jorje why he took control of a car while not holding a driver's licence, Mr. Cronk replied, "I wanted a chance to drive."

St. Joseph's Hospital pathologist Dr. Garth Walther told the jury Mr. Cairney, 83, had trouble with cataracts.

Mr. Cronk was asked why he drove the car when he found the brakes were not working properly.

"I figured I could handle them," he said.

$17,500,000 'Fair Figure'

School Spending May Top City's

Salary Increases Cost $1,000,000

By A. H. MURPHY

If education costs reach $17,500,000 this year, as predicted, the Greater Victoria School Board will spend about $500,000 more than the entire city administration.

It would be the first time this has happened, City Treasurer James Bramley said Wednesday, and indicated that even mounting school costs were becoming an oppressive burden.

Last year the school board spent $15,350,000. The city's budget was about $15,750,000. This year's provisional city budget is $15,946,000.

Assessment Appeals Normal

Greater Victoria property owners have registered 141 appeals to the municipal courts of revision against the amounts of their assessments. The number is not much different from figures of previous years, officials said.

Victoria had nine, Oak Bay 36, Esquimalt six and Saanich 98.

A Saanich municipal spokesman said about 25 of the appeals were from owners of property on the waterfront at Cordova Bay, where an early December storm washed away some of the land.

Court of revision opens at City Hall Jan. 31; Oak Bay municipal hall Feb. 6; Esquimalt municipal hall Feb. 6; and Saanich municipal hall Jan. 31.

By Engineer

Sewer Plan Upheld

Saanich design engineer Frank Neate spent 2 1/2 hours Wednesday defending the Greater Victoria Sewerage Study before an Enquai study group. The group is made up of University of Victoria staff members and students interested in environmental quality.

The scientists in the group expressed concern that the report prepared by Associated Engineering Services Ltd. dealt only with disposal of sewage into the sea without treatment.

Mr. Neate countered that the standards set by the Provincial Pollution Control Board were stringent, and that the plan met all the board's conditions.

UNHAPPY Mr. Neate did concede that he was unhappy with the population distribution figures used in the study. He said the projections were acceptable, but he was not satisfied that the population would be distributed throughout the Greater Victoria area in the way the planners assumed.

He said he had come to some of his own conclusions "on the basis of intuition, because sanitary engineering is an art, not a science."

He added, "In the final analysis, experts can only do so much. It all depends on what the people are prepared to pay and how effectively politicians can sell them on a plan."

ACCEPTABLE Mr. Neate said he did not agree that the entire area needed to be on sewers. He said there were areas in Colwood, Langford and Cordova Bay where soil conditions made the use of septic tanks acceptable.

In reply to a suggestion that the report did not offer alternatives to the sea disposal method, Mr. Neate said, "I feel you are being overconcerned by lack of knowledge. This report is at least a step forward."

He was interrupted by cries of, "Oh you think it is? Britain learned this was wrong 50 years ago."

The study has been accepted in principle by the regional board, and an application has been made to the provincial government for letters patent to permit the board to go ahead with sewer work.

Heart Aid Fund Short $3,000

The Victoria Kiwanis Club said Monday it was still $3,000 short of its $22,000 objective for heart monitors needed in the coronary care wards at St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee hospitals.

SCHOOL FIGURE

The school board figure in 1967 was an increase of $2,350,000 over 1966, and forced a 4.8-mill boost in the city's tax rate.

Mill rate in Victoria last year was 67.3, made up of 39.3 general rate and 28 mills for schools.

Until detailed discussions open on Jan. 28, school board members were reluctant to hazard a budget figure for 1968, but admitted that they would be "very happy" to keep the figure at $17,500,000.

SALARY BOOSTS

They pointed out that the 1967 figure would have to increase by $1,000,000 to meet salary increases alone. The latest teacher boost would cost $600,000, and negotiations had not opened on contracts for inside and outside civic workers.

Peter Bunn, board chairman, said $17,500,000 was a "good, educated guess" but it was impossible at this time to produce a firm figure. Only one of five school board committees has met to discuss its phases of the budget and Mr. Bunn said he has asked them all to keep their expenditures down to essentials.

FAIR FIGURE

George Curran, chairman of the school board finance committee, said Wednesday he thought $17,500,000 was a "fair figure" at which to set the school budget, although he could not make any prophecy at this time.

The school population has grown by about 1,000 to approximately 30,000, he said, and increased classroom demands and higher maintenance and construction costs would all have to be considered.

PART OF TAB

Mr. Bramley said he could not say just what increases in the schools budget would mean to the city until he learned just what part of the tab would be picked up by the provincial government.

The government bore part of the city's costs, based on a teacher-salary formula, but the schedule on which grants were made was four years old. Thus grants were made on salaries of four years ago, and substantial increases since that time were not considered.

FIRST TIME

Commenting on the prospect of school expenditures exceeding those of the city for the first time, the treasurer said:

"I never consider a record budget an accomplishment. In fact, it is an achievement I like to see a spending body avoid."

About March, members of city council will sit down to boil the fat out of their own budget—a job which will take two-day sessions of a week or more.

Camp-Out Blamed On Snarled Rope

Two Sidney residents were rescued by the Coast Guard cutter Ready Wednesday from the rocky shore of Princess Margaret Island, north of Swartz Bay.

R. M. Lansdowne of 10392 All Bay Road and Mrs. L. H. Fowler of Harbor Road were attempting to take a log in tow when a rope fouled around the propeller of Mr. Lansdowne's 24-foot boat at about 2 p.m. Tuesday. They were only a few feet from the island, and landed to wait for help.

When the tide dropped and the boat came out of the water, several hours later, they were able to clear the propeller, but

Parents Take Notes

Workshop to show parents how they can help children with new music curriculum had melodic moments Wednesday night at Cordova Bay school. Alarm Brings Rescue

Electronic Vigil Saves Life In Heart Case

By JOHN MATTERS

The new heart monitors which are being bought by Victoria Kiwanis Club have already saved a life at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Reginald McCaul, 81, was plugged into the coronary care equipment when his heart suddenly stopped a week ago. The cardiac arrest triggered alarms which brought the doctors and nurses who revived the man.

Song Time

A barber shop quartet will provide entertainment at the Sidney Silver Threads Service at 2 p.m. Monday. Frank Minns and his group will be the entertainers.

Mr. McCaul is still on the monitors in one of Royal Jubilee's heart wards, a member of his family said Wednesday night.

CONSTANT WATCH

Around the clock, his heartbeat is being watched by electronic devices that set off alarms within seconds after a heart starts behaving abnormally.

Both St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospitals are getting four sets of monitoring equipment that will be installed in coronary care wards expected to open next month.

Until those wards are opened, the $33,000 worth of equipment is being used wherever it is needed in the hospitals. Nursing instructors are also using some of the components to teach ward staff.

REMAINDER COMING

The Victoria Kiwanis Club has raised all but $3,000 of its $22,000 share of the equipment.

The remainder is coming from the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service.

Mr. McCaul was admitted to Royal Jubilee on Jan. 2, complaining of severe chest and abdominal pain.

It was diagnosed as heart trouble, and he subsequently was put on the monitors, which doctors expect will save the lives of about 80 Victorians a year.

STILL CRITICAL

A member of Mr. McCaul's family said he was still in critical condition and could see only his closest relatives for five minutes at a time.

Bottle Drive

The 4th Fort Victoria Boy Scouts will have a bottle drive Saturday morning to raise money for new tents. It will be in the area bounded by Bay, Richmond, Chambers and Pandora.

'It's an Internal Thing'

Navy May Never Tell Story of Qu'Appelle

The Royal Canadian Navy may never tell exactly how HMCS Qu'Appelle came to drift ashore off West's Beach late Monday night, a spokesman indicated Wednesday.

The navy opened a board of inquiry Wednesday morning to probe the incident, in which the $35,000,000 warship crunched ashore stern-first after losing her anchor. (See also Page 18.)

The navy would not disclose how many witnesses appeared before the board Wednesday, nor would it say what officer was presiding.

'INTERNAL THING'

"It's an internal thing, for which we give no publicity," a spokesman said.

"It's not likely" there will be any details released when the hearing ends, which is not expected for several days.

No comment was made on rumors that efforts were made to take Qu'Appelle off the beach under her own power.

DAMAGE NOTED

Earlier Wednesday, an official spokesman said the Qu'Appelle received damage to her two propellers, rudder assembly and a few hull plates, but no damage to the propeller shafts or frame of the hull.

Slight damage was done to some underwater detection gear, the spokesman said.

The 2,800-ton, $35,000,000 warship will be moved into the government graving dock Friday for further inspection. Repair work has not yet been planned, and cost has not been determined.

CABLE PARTED

The spokesman said the mishap began when one of the Qu'Appelle's two anchors was lost when a cable parted. The ship was blown around before a second anchor, dropped immediately, could gain a purchase, he said.

The navy statement said the grounding occurred at 11:30 p.m. Monday, and 33 minutes later the sister ship St. Croix, also anchored in the area, was "proceeding to Qu'Appelle's aid."

During rescue attempts, the St. Croix was blown within 100 yards of the beach, the statement added.

During the nine-hour episode, three tow lines were broken, the navy said.

Supreme Court Next Step

Former B.C. purchasing commission chairman G. E. F. Jones announced Wednesday he would appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada a B.C. Appeal Court ruling in his slander suit against Premier Bennett.

Three judges of the Appeal Court returned a unanimous verdict Monday, overturning the $15,000 slander judgment against Mr. Bennett obtained in B.C. Supreme Court last March.

Mr. Jones said he had been advised that there were substantial grounds in law for claiming that the Appeal Court went beyond its powers in reversing the earlier court decision.

Labor Council Differs On Immigration

Opinions on immigration sparked a lively debate at the Victoria Labor Council Wednesday.

Unemployment committee chairman Ed Haw said he favored relaxation of immigration laws; former council president Robert Barrie said he was opposed to wider immigration provisions, particularly if they permitted acceptance of skilled craftsmen; painters' union delegate A. H. Gildemeester advocated less freedom in immigration laws.

"How can we advocate brotherhood of men if we reduce immigration?" IWA delegate Joe Fowler asked.

"We could create a better climate by buying in B.C."

He suggested the federal government could help B.C. unemployment by constructing new coast guard ships in B.C.

Several other delegates added their voices to the suggestion that Canada needed more immigrants.

Jack Groves was returned to his second year as president, by acclamation.

Delegate Daryl Walker said

Bob Willis of Duncan made the first entry in the Daily Colonist's Vancouver Island Tenpin Borspiel for the second year in a row, filling out an entry form last Sunday just before Wally Ostafachuk, who has played in all four previous tenpin and fivepin borspiels. . . . Gene Achtymbach, one-time member of the Victoria Cougars now coaching Long Island Ducks of the Eastern Hockey League, was recently fined $100 for trying to influence the report to league headquarters made by referee Bill Fringle after being slugged by Long Island defenseman John Brophy. . . . Pat Gianni, another ex-Cougar, is coaching Ylla Flon Bombers of the Western Canada Junior Hockey League. . . . our best wishes to Doug Fletcher and Art Vesla, long-time Victoria hockey fan, who are both ailing in hospital. . . . biggest basketball game of all time has resulted from Saturday's meeting between UCLA, unbeaten in two seasons, and University of Houston at Houston Astrodome on Saturday night. It cost $10,000 to truck in and set up a portable floor but all 49,500 seats have long since been sold and upwards of 50,000 fans will pay more than $200,000 to watch. . . . the Astrodome, incidentally, will be unique only until 1971. That's the completion date for the domed stadium planned for New Orleans. This one will seat 80,000 fans for football, it will have movable stands that travel on an air cushion and for the ultimate for fans, all of them will be able to see one of the giant television screens which will flash the same replays available to television watchers. . . . the National Basketball Association has a rule which could well be adopted by professional hockey. When a coach is ejected from the game he must leave the premises or pay an automatic $50 fine if seen in the stadium before the game is over.

A sportsman's dinner, intended to become an annual affair, is being planned by the Sports Council for this spring. It will feature an award for the man of the year in sports and awards for the outstanding male and female athletes of the year. . . . a date to remember is Saturday, April 27. That's when the Danish national gymnastic team will appear in Memorial Arena. And while this has nothing to do with sports, another fine attraction is the Black Sea Chorus, which will appear at the arena on Monday, April 8. . . . also on tap this year are the Canadian badminton championships—open, closed and junior. The open and closed events will be at the Raquet Club, the junior event at Cordova Bay Hall March 26-30. They were held here last in 1958. . . . 18-year-old Lee York, bowling in the Pacific Coast junior trials earlier this month, managed a rare fivepin double when he spared after a head-pin hit and then spared "aces-up" in his next game. . . . Jean Beliveau is again proving that Montreal Canadiens are a contending team only when he is healthy. It would be interesting to compare Canadiens' win-loss record with and without their captain in the lineup. . . . watching the artistry of a Beliveau or a Gordie Howe is always a pleasure and now we have Bobby Orr, who makes moves unbelievable for a fellow who won't be 20 until March 20 and could well become the greatest of them all. . . . our congratulations to 18-year-old Theodor Bookner, who has been in Melbourne for the past year as a pupil of the famed Australian tennis coach, Brian Hartley. She recently clinched her Down Under stay by winning the ladies open singles in the Nelson provincial tournament in New Zealand. Due back home in June, she could be nationally ranked within a year. . . .

Ten city distaff tenpinners have a "dream" trip planned for May. Hazel McLeary, Anne Goodman, Coby Lobezzo, Lorena Reid and Irma Holmes, who will bowl together on one team, and Barb McNally, Sheila Rimbauer, Ev Noonan, Betty Aak and Jean Kellner, who will form a second team, will go to Nassau for a tournament before competing in the WIBC tournament in San Antonio on May 23 and 24. . . . Sports Illustrated reports a sign in the Chicago Athletic Club which read "Join our fencing club—we need some new blood." . . . there was considerable conservation in this office last Saturday night when Canadian Press reported that Grant Evans of Kamloops Rockets of the B.C. Junior Hockey League had scored three goals in an eight-second span. That was all but unbelievable but no one could even begin to entertain the thought that the last two of them came two seconds apart, and it was no surprise when a check of films showed it took him 18 seconds to get his three with the closest two were six seconds apart. The fastest two goals, as far as can be ascertained, were scored by Nels Stewart four seconds apart in an NHL game in 1931. . . . a book that all football fans should read is "Paper Lion." It proved a bonanza for author George Plimpton with more than 100,000 hard-cover copies sold and $50,000 paid for movie rights. . . . one hears that Herb Capozzi, former general manager of the B.C. Lions, is not satisfied with being an MLA and would like to have an MP after his name. . . . top ticket price for the Super Bowl game was $15, which proves the kind of a grip football has won. . . . television just can't get enough sports. The 1960 Winter Olympics commanded a television fee of $50,000, the ABC paid $500,000 for the rights to televise the 1964 Winter Olympics and now will pay $2,000,000, plus about $3,500,000 in communication satellite costs to televise the 1968 Winter Games in Grenoble.

Canada Ready to Propose Five-Nation Hockey League

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Free Press says Canada will propose the establishment of a five-country World Hockey League when the International Ice Hockey Federation meets at Grenoble, France, Jan. 31 to Feb. 1.

The paper quotes Gordon Jukes, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, as saying in a telephone interview Wednesday night from Winnipeg the proposed league would include the national teams of Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, United States and two from Canada.

"We'll have to get approval to go ahead with our plan from the CAHA at their semi-annual meeting at Toronto this weekend, but I expect that will only be a formality," the paper quotes Jukes as saying.

"Our biggest job will be to sell Russians and the other European teams on the idea. I think the time is gone when we can stumble from one exhibition tour to another. We have to provide these countries with a systematic schedule."

The newspaper says the proposed World League would not conflict with Olympic and World Tournament schedules.

The CAHA approached the International Federation on the idea of establishing a World League three years ago. It was rejected at that time.

Jukes said the CAHA plan calls for a 20 to 30-game schedule in which the European teams would play six games in North America over a two-week period before returning home.

Eight Trophies at Stake In Basketball Jamboree

Approximately 500 players on 50 teams will be in action Friday and Saturday when the Victoria Amateur Basketball Association holds its annual jamboree.

Association's minor program has increased by over 200 players from last season and includes both boys and girls from seven to 17 years of age.

Teams will be competing for the eight tournament trophies, one for each winning team in the pre-midnight, mid-night, bantam and juvenile divisions.

Completion of the jamboree will take a total of 42 games of 20-minute duration with each team in the association playing at least once.

Friday's action will be held at S. J. Willis and Mount View Schools from 6:30 to 9 p.m., while all games on Saturday will be played at Victoria High School's two gymnasiums starting at 10 a.m. and winding up with a game between the coaches from S. J. Willis division under Moe Turner of the junior Chinooks and Mount View division under the officiating Bob Bird and Cedric Trueman.

Bengals Draft Cookie Gilchrist

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — All in all, Paul Brown may not have done too badly in the draft which was held to stock his new American Football League team, Cincinnati Bengals.

Brown, the former boss of Cleveland Browns of the National League, picked up an all-star linebacker, the league's No. 4 all-time rusher, its No. 5 all-time pass catcher and the 1966 rookie of the year.

Tempestuous Cookie Gilchrist from Denver Broncos is the rusher and Bobby Burnett from Buffalo Bills, the rookie sensation. Both sat out most of the 1967 season with injuries.

SURE-FINGER RECEIVER

Chris Burford from Kansas City, who caught 25 passes for 389 yards this season, has nabbed 391 passes in eight seasons.

Frank Buncom of San Diego Chargers was the altar-mate available in the draft.

"I expected to be with another team," he said. "I played out my option and Cincinnati will be a welcome change."

Bengals drafted 40 players to stock their team, 20 from each of the eastern and western divisions. They didn't pick up a quarterback, seemingly happy to go with John Stofa, obtained in a trade with Miami Dolphins who were exempt from the draft.

MORE FROM COLLEGES

Cincinnati will be able to pick up more players during the college draft which is to be held in New York, Jan. 30-31.

Boston — Halfback Joe Bellino, defensive tackle Jim Boutwell, defensive tackle Jim Boutwell, defensive tackle Jim Boutwell, defensive tackle Jim Boutwell.

Kansas City — End Chris Burford, defensive back Bobbie Hunt, and defensive back Al Reynolds.

San Diego — Placekicker Dick Van Dyke, linebacker Frank Buncom, defensive back Frank March, and Jim Griffin, tackle Ernie Wright.

Oakland — Halfback Nate Johns and Edna Bagges, guard Dan Archer, tackle Richard Siegel, and Rod Sherman.

Victoria High and Oak Bay won their second straight games in the Inter-High School girls' basketball league Wednesday.

Victoria trounced Mt. Douglas, 61-21, in the winners' gym and Oak Bay slipped by Claremont, 43-41, at Claremont.

Esquimalt won its first game, stopping the visiting Mount View squad, 28-22, in the other league game.

Using a two-squad lineup shuttle and a 3-1-1 press, the Victoria Tigers took advantage of ball control to roll up a 34-11 half-time lead.

Ann McKeachie led the Tigers with nine points, one more than teammate Sue Maboe and Pat Bourne. Marlene Whittington and Lynne Miller scored six points each for the losers.

A 1-3-1 zone defense by visiting Oak Bay kept Claremont girls from completing many plays. Lynette Goff paced the Bays with 13 points and teammate Jacqueline Farris scored 11.

Barb Tribe of Claremont was leading scorer with 21 points.

Esquimalt's Wendy Humphreys paced her team with nine points, while Ann Orsagialle led Mount View with eight points.

Next game: Tonight — Toronto at Boston; Philadelphia at Minnesota; Pittsburgh at Los Angeles.

Chicago Black Hawks had a seven-game unbeaten streak ended as they lost for only the second time in their last 19 games Wednesday night but Montreal Canadiens have come out of nowhere to pose a serious challenge for the National Hockey League's Eastern Division lead.

While the Hawks were taking a 4-2 setback on home ice from New York Rangers, Canadiens picked on Detroit's slumping Red Wings in Montreal for a 6-1 victory to stretch their unbeaten streak to 10 games.

Results boosted Canadiens within three points of the division-leading Hawks and within one point of the second-place Boston Bruins, who have the advantage of two games in hand on both their closest rivals.

DEFENCE POROUS

Faced by a Detroit defence that could do little right in its own zone, the smooth-passing Canadiens made a target out of Detroit-goalie Roy Edwards.

They fired 55 shots directly at the 30-year-old rookie, and Edwards would have been a star if he had missed on 12 of them instead of a half dozen.

Edwards couldn't have counted his spectacular stops on his fingers. He made phenomenal stops on Yvan Cournoyer and Jean Beliveau early in the second period, fumbled J. C. Tremblay and Bob Rousseau before the period ended, balked Gilles Tremblay at least twice when goals seemed certain, got a toe out to deflect a blazing shot by Jacques Lemaire and flopped to stop Rousseau again in a 25-shot third period.

HELP FROM GOALPOSTS

Edwards also had some breaks, shots by John Ferguson, Cournoyer and Beliveau which had him beaten bouncing off the pipes.

Beliveau, who could easily have doubled his output but for Edwards and a couple of bad breaks, once again was the Montreal leader as he delivered his 14th three-goal performance.

His three scoring shots boosted his output for a season in which he has missed 15 games because of injuries to 18 goals. His career total is now 417 goals.

EARLY OPENER

Wings started with a dangerous rush but Beliveau, put in the clear by a perfect through pass from J. C. Tremblay, turned the game around by scoring his first goal after only 23 seconds of play.

Dick Duff got the first of his two goals three minutes later and Beliveau pushed the margin to 3-0 by scoring again in the first minute of the second period.

Alex Delvecchio got the Detroit goal less than two minutes later but Jacques Laperriere, whose improved play has been a big factor in the Montreal surge, ended hopes of a rally by beating Edwards with a booming slap-shot, hit while he was off balance from about 50 feet and right through a host of players between him and the goal.

Canadiens, who have won 10 and tied two of 13 games since their Dec. 17 flareup in Detroit and are unbeaten this year, took 25 shots at Edwards in the third period, six more than the Wings managed against Rogatien Vachon in the game.

GOAL NO. 27

Stan Mikita, with his 27th goal, and Eric Nesterenko, with his sixth, put Hawks ahead twice, but the Rangers tied it up at 2-2 in the last minute of the second period, won it when Phil Goyette and Camille Henry scored 35 seconds apart early in the final 20 minutes.

Mikita's goal gave him his 52nd point of the season, moving him two points in front of teammate Bobby Hull in the individual point race.

Victory moved Rangers into a fourth-place tie with the idle Toronto Maple Leafs in the Eastern Division, three points behind Montreal.

TIST SHUTOUT

St. Louis Blues, who have been making into Western Division contention by winning six and tying two of their last 11 games, pulled into a fourth-place tie with Los Angeles Kings by blanking Minnesota North Stars, 5-0, before 6,523 St. Louis fans.

Glenn Hall blocked 24 shots in registering his third shutout of the season and the first of his NHL career.

In last night's other game, Andy Bathgate's 16th goal of the season gave Pittsburgh Penguins a 1-1 tie with Oakland and moved them into a second-place tie with the North Stars, one point ahead of the Penguins and Kings.

All-Star Injury

Boston's brilliant young defenseman Bobby Orr may be sidelined for a week as the result of a muscle injury to his right shoulder suffered in Tuesday's All-Star game.

Orr said he probably suffered the injury in a late game collision with Toronto's Pete Stelmowski.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Howie Glover scored a hat trick Wednesday night to spark Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League to a 4-2 victory over Portland Buckaroos.

The triumph enabled the Barons to avenge a 5-2 defeat by the Western Hockey League team at Portland earlier in the season.

Glover, the Barons' leading goal-getter with 23, got his first two goals in the first period and completed the hat trick in the second after a goal by Norm Ferguson had given Cleveland a 3-0 lead.

Andy Hobenton and Art Jones scored the Portland goals, in the third period.

The hat trick was the third of the season for Glover.

The Barons have not lost in their 14 games at home. It was the only game of the night involving a WHL team.

New Women's Ratings

Beware Ladies—Big Sister Checking

By AL EATON
VANCOUVER (CP) — women golfers beware! Big Sister has been checking your scores.

Lucy Markham, national committee rating chairman of the Canadian Ladies Golf Association, reports that inspection of 544 courses in Canada was completed in 1967.

As a result, 185 have been given new national women's ratings and more than 100 are under review.

The national rating is the association's assessment of how difficult, or how easy a course plays. It is not the handicap as established by the course, but the handicap rating assessed by the Canadian Golf Association.

It is determined by measuring each hole on a course and giving it a decimal rating. This is done because of the variance in yardages.

A women's par-3 hole can measure anywhere from 90 yards to 210. Similarly, a par-4 hole might measure 210 yards or 335, and a par-5 could measure more than 600 yards, or be only 400 yards long.

Thus, a discrepancy of two or three strokes could occur between courses, although studies showed as many courses were over-rated as under-rated.

The golf association uses a decimal system of measurement. Each hole is given a par rating, from 3.1 to 3.9. From this, the national rating is determined. It relates one course to another and enables uniform national competition, with handicaps computed on the same basis.

Mrs. Markham said the association doesn't urge courses to change their "scorecard" to conform with national ratings, but it asks them to post national ratings on the front of the scorecard or in the locker room.

"And all club professionals are advised of the national rating," she added.

To complete the task of rating all 544 courses in Canada, Mrs. Markham recruited chairmen in all provinces. They in turn selected course inspectors. She was allotted three years to do the job, but completed it in one.

Distances were measured with the "trained eye" on an "in flight" basis by expert golfers, and pairs were based on play of a theoretical scratch player.

Although Big Sister now has rated every course in Canada, the handicap system remains the same—formulated by taking the 10 best of your last 25 scores, determining the differential average and subtracting it from par.

For tournament play, you use the national par rating to determine the differential. You take 85 per cent of this figure to determine your handicap.

You can "sand bag" as much as you want, said Mrs. Markham.

"But if you're going to play as a guest at another club, determine your handicap on the national rating, and just hope your opponent does the same."

Grants for Athletes

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal grants of more than $60,000 to train Canadian athletes and send them to international competitions were announced Wednesday.

More than half the amount, about $32,785, will go towards the cost of Canadian participation in the Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France, next month.

Another $7,680 will go to the Canadian Amateur Ski Association for pre-Olympic competition in Europe.

The grants were announced by Health Minister MacEachen. In most cases they cover half the travel and living costs of athletes and officials.

Other grants were:

—Canadian Lawn Tennis Association: Two grants totalling $3,272 to help send teams to the Davis Cup championships in Europe this year and to the Federation Cup championships in New Zealand in January, 1969;

—Canadian Amateur Softball Association: $4,275 to help send a team to the 1968 world championships in Oklahoma City in September;

—Figure Skating Association: $2,375 for training the Canadian team for the world championships;

—Shooting Federation of Canada: $2,118 to send a trap-shooting team to the world moving target championships in Italy in September;

—Canadian Amateur Speed Skating Association: $2,049 for additional assistance in pre-training in Europe of the Olympic team;

—Canadian Handball Association: $835 to send a four-man team to the U.S. championships in St. Louis in April.

One-Day Boycott Ends at Hialeah

MIAMI (AP) — A state official announced Wednesday an agreement had been reached between horsemen and Hialeah race course, ending a one-day boycott.

L. B. Walker, secretary of the Florida Racing Commission, also said the track would open its 1968 meeting today.

Walker said the agreement would meet demands of horsemen for a larger share of Hialeah's seven-per-cent commission on every dollar wagered. He said the pact would cost the track an estimated $2,496,310 for the 1968 season.

A statement issued by the track said the additional money would be paid in race purses, fire insurance, contributions to the welfare fund of the horsemen and other ways.

The boycott of owners, trainers and jockeys arose primarily from a dispute over how much of the gate the track should pay the horsemen.

With a handle of more than $2,000,000 predicted for opening day, the shutdown cost the track its seven per cent—or $140,000—and the state its eight per cent—or $160,000.

JOCKEYS ALL SICK

The track had planned to run an abbreviated seven-race program opening day with 33 horses, but the makeshift debut was scratched suddenly Wednesday morning when the jockeys announced they had all come down with the flu and could not ride.

Austrian Ladies Top Ski Event

BADGASTEIN, Austria (AP) — Olga Pail, a 20-year-old Austrian who helps her mother run a gas station, won the first international downhill race of the season for women Wednesday in the opening event of the Silver Jug ski meet.

She was one of five Austrians to finish in the top 10.

The winner clocked in 2:02.40 on the fast 2,500-metre course.

Christl Hans, Austria's world downhill queen, was second in 2:02.66, and Britain's Divina Galica, an Austrian-trained skier, was third in 2:03.87.

Austria's Brigitte Seiwald was fourth in 2:04.24; West Germany's Burg Faerberinger, 2:04.36; France's Annie Farnose, 2:04.88; France's Marie Collet, 2:05.09; and Austria's Lisi Lail, 2:05.12, and Wiltrud Drexel, 2:05.96.

Canada's Nancy Greene did not compete. She suffered an ankle injury in training.

She is expected to participate in the next meet at St. Gervais, France, one of the last major events before the Winter Olympics start.

Bonner Indication

Action Unlikely On Gas Price

QUESNEL (CP) — Attorney-General Bonner indicated Tuesday night the provincial government is not planning any early action on recommendations of the Morrow royal commission on gasoline prices.

He told a meeting of the Quesnel division of the Automotive Retailers' Association that there is no price regulation on gasoline anywhere in North America. But he said the government is giving earning attention to the report.

Mr. Bonner urged members of the ARA to look to themselves to improve services to tourists. He said a total of 770,000 American vehicles brought 2,000,000 tourists to B.C. last year, and these along with visitors from other parts of Canada spent $280,000,000.

Mr. Bonner said Penticton, with its new Peach Bowl building, attracted seven major conventions worth $1,235,000 to the city. But Victoria, with no major convention facilities, attracted 38 conventions worth only $1,373,000.

Brigade Held Blameless

BANCROFT, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury Wednesday exonerated the Bancroft volunteer fire brigade from blame in the Jan. 2 death of five children.

Cecil McAlpine, Bancroft fire chief, refused to let fire trucks go to the blaze in Turin, Ont., about 10 miles south of here, because it was outside his district.

The jury said the children died of asphyxiation shortly after the fire started and could not have been saved if the fire department had responded. They also ruled Chief McAlpine could not respond because there is no fire agreement with the surrounding townships.

The children, Mona Hiltz, 12, and her four brothers, Kevin, 8, Kevin, 3, Timmy, 2, and Mark, eight months, died when the fire destroyed their small frame house about 60 miles northeast of Peterborough.

His Pictures Record History

Award of merit plaque of red cedar and embossed with dogwood emblem and two centenary medals has been presented to Colonist photographer Jim Ryan by B.C. Centennial Committee. Award was made in recognition of "time, support and leadership during two years of centennial celebrations in British Columbia." Ryan travelled throughout province during past two years to photograph events ranging from Nanaimo bathtub race to cairn unveiling at Bella Coola.

School Traffic Hazard Esquimalt Studies Pickup Problem

Esquimalt police have a more "Christian" attitude toward parents who park their cars by yellow-lined curbs near schools than he has, Esquimalt engineer William Gerry told the municipal traffic subcommittee Tuesday night.

Complaining about cars parked in the region of Lampson Street elementary school, particularly on wet days, Mr. Gerry said there were yellow curbs throughout the area.

HEADS TURN

"Parents drive up to these yellow curbs and park all over the place," he said.

"Even if the police wagon comes by, they turn their heads and pretend they don't see them."

"I mentioned it to the police, and apparently they are a little more Christian than I am and allow parents to pick up their kids."

NOT PARKED

The committee was discussing a letter from a resident complaining of the hazard to children crossing because of the cars parked right up to the crosswalks.

Recreation director Harold Moist said there was little police could do, because a car is not in violation of the parking ban as long as the driver is in the car with the engine running.

"He's stopped then, not parked, and technically there's nothing wrong," said Mr. Moist. "You can't even see the children with the flags until they have stepped out into the road," said Mr. Gerry.

Coun. Edward De Costa agreed that, because of poor visibility with cars parking right up to the crosswalk, there were times when cars had to come to screeching stops at the walks.

"They can't see the flags until they are right on them," he said.

It was decided to wait for more information.

The traffic committee also agreed to study the possibility of a bylaw to force all property owners to put in driveways for off-street parking if they have sufficient room.

Engineer Gerry was asked to study the idea after council had received complaints from several areas about cars being parked on streets.

Public works committee will recommend to council that the cost of sewer connections be increased from $100 to $175 for single connections and from $150 to $225 for double connections.

Luxton Fair Decision Due in Two Weeks

A decision whether to hold the Luxton fall fair this year will be made at a meeting later this month of the executive of the Metchosis Farmers' Institute, which owns the fairgrounds.

At the annual meeting Tuesday night of the Institute it was reported that the fair actually lost $300 over the year, despite a record attendance for the three-day event.

"We spent $3,000 for improvements to the grounds, and lost the whole lot in the fire," fair committee chairman John Williams said.

He said two offers of help in rebuilding have been received, one of them from the city.

"Nobody has volunteered to take on the job of fair manager, and I don't see how we can possibly manage without one," said Mr. Williams.

"There'll be enough to do rebuilding the lost structures, and we lost everything inside, everything that's going to take a long while to re-build and paint."

James Chidlow was re-elected president of the Farmers' Institute.

Biennial Conference

Senior Forest Officers Meet Here Next Week

The senior officers of the British Columbia Forest Service will be in Victoria next week for a conference that takes place once every two years.

The five district foresters and their assistants will be here from their headquarters in Prince George, Prince Rupert, Kamloops, Nelson and Vancouver.

They are the officers of the government agency who are responsible for most of the field work. Of the forest service's 2,000 permanent employees, only 625 work in Victoria, the policy-making centre.

Their meetings with the service's 13 divisional heads will last most of next week.

One of the main topics will be a post-mortem of last year's fire season, the most expensive on record in terms of suppression costs. Other items of business include reforestation, multiple use of forest lands and sustained yield practices.

Check Stored Bulbs

By M. V. CHESNUT

It isn't a bad idea at this season of the year to check over the gladiolus corms and dahlia tubers in storage. All kinds of things can happen to them, mostly because of unfavorable storage conditions, but if you can catch these troubles at their onset, you can usually head them off.

When you examine the gladiolus, you will probably find a ring of little white pimples or nodules forming on the base, round the rim of the root scar. Quite a few readers write to me every year about this, fearing their bulbs are attacked by some pest or disease, but there is nothing in this to worry about.

The nodules are merely the beginnings of the new roots and indicate that the bulbs have broken dormancy — they winter sleep — and are ready to start growing as soon as warmth and moisture are available.

Sprouting from the top of the bulb, however, is a pup from a different litter, for this indicates that the bulbs have actually started into growth, and far too early for their own good.

This occurs when the storage temperature is too high, and if this is not rectified, the shoots will elongate, becoming stinky and blighted in the darkness, like the sprouts from a sack of potatoes stored in a too-warm basement.

Fat white sprouts showing on the tops of gladiolus bulbs this early in the year are a pretty sure sign that the storage place is not cool enough, and about all you can do is go exploring with a thermometer to find a cooler place, so the bulbs can be held back, retarding their growth until just before planting time. Try to find a spot where the temperature remains below 45 degrees but free from actual frost.

I have had several SOS calls recently about dahlia tubers sprouting in storage, and here again, the trouble is too much warmth. If the sprouted shoots are still short and stubby, no great harm has been done, and by withholding the tubers into a cooler place, the rate of growth can be slowed down to the point where the sprouts won't be too long and unmanageable at planting time.

If the shoots are already too long when discovered, do not rub them off, for it is unlikely that any more sprouts will appear to take their place. Instead, shorten them with a sharp knife or razor blade to just a little less than an inch long; there is a good chance the shortened sprout will branch out and grow again from the first leaf joint or node.

Unfortunately, you can't do this with gladiolus. If you break off or shorten the sprout, there are no nodes from which branching shoots can grow.

In examining dahlia tubers, keep a sharp lookout for sprouts with a distorted appearance. Occasionally, instead of a normal sprout, a warty growth appears looking rather like a miniature cauliflower. This is a symptom of a very destructive dahlia disease, and any such infected tubers should be removed and burned immediately.

Getting back to gladiolus, these plants are extraordinarily difficult to transplant successfully since they are rooted and growing. I have tried several times to start them indoors, as you would tomato plants, planting the bulbs in flats of soil and transplanting later to open ground, but the gamble never came off.

Nowadays, with the modern consumable plant pots made of peat or fibre, such a deal is possible. In fibre pots, the plants are never really transplanted at all, as the pot is set into the ground at planting time to disintegrate in the soil. With no disturbance of the roots, the plants go right ahead without any check to their growth.

The trick is to keep them cool and in plenty of sunshine during their indoor growth, and don't set them out until the soil has warmed up in the spring.

ART BUCHWALD Meets the Author

How Domino Theory Began

WASHINGTON — One of the most discussed political theories of our time is the so-called "domino theory" which the administration uses to justify most of its reasons why the U.S. is in Vietnam.

The domino theory is based on the premise that countries in Southeast Asia are like so many dominoes, and if one falls, the next one will fall until every country out there is down and taken over by godless communism.

While there has been a great deal of talk about the domino theory, very little attention has been paid to the man who originally thought it up, and I decided it was time somebody talked to him.

His name, it turns out, is Sam Domino and he lives in Forest Hills, New York, where I found him on a recent Sunday afternoon playing gin rummy.

When I expressed surprise at this, he explained, "Dominoes bore me."

"Mr. Domino, your domino theory is the touchstone of American military and diplomatic thrust in Southeast Asia. Could you explain how you thought it up?"

"Well, one evening we were having a buffet and there were about 20 people lined up with plates waiting for some chicken omelette when my uncle, who was first in line, slipped and fell backward."

"He knocked over my aunt standing in back of him and she, in turn, knocked over my cousin, who knocked over my son and so on until all 20 people were on the floor."

"It suddenly occurred to me that if this could happen to people, it could happen to countries."

"So what did you do?"

"I wrote a letter to John Foster Dulles, who was then secretary of state."

"But who named it the domino theory?"

"My wife. She said when she read the letter, 'Sam, put your name on it or they won't give you any credit.' At first I was reluctant to do so, but then I figured I had nothing to lose so I specifically said that if they used any part of my letter, they'd have to mention me as the author of the theory."

"And so the Domino Theory was then practically applied to the countries in Southeast Asia."

"Yup. From then through the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, our whole commitment in that part of the world has been based on my theory. If it hadn't been for my wife, no one would have ever heard of me."

"You must be very proud."

"I am, but I'm starting to get a little worried."

"Why is that?"

"The other night I had another party and again my uncle was first in line and again he fell, but this time everyone was braced for it and no one else fell. It shot my domino theory to hell."

"You better get off a letter to Dean Rusk right away."

"My wife said I better forget it. I've caused enough trouble already."

Rumors Explain Silence

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — The rumors of an impending visit from the stork in the Anne Bancroft-Mel Brooks ménage would explain the stories that Anne, who recently left The Little Foxes in Manhattan and is all over the screen in The Graduate, has been out of sorts and refusing interviews. Anne is often out of sorts and rarely given interviews, which is a pity because when she does speak out she is good copy.

There has to be a "Doll" mystique, because in spite of the devastating reviews for Valley of the Dolls which I agreed with, the lines outside the box office are adding to the happiness of 20th Century-Fox stockholders. How long it will be before moviegoers catch on, is something else again.

The entire Niven clan was in Switzerland for the holidays, including David's sister, and all their assorted children. This is the time of the year when the debonair David refuses all movie offers, pour le ciel. In spite of brushes and a broken bone or two, the Nivens are nuts about this exciting and dangerous sport.

Rolling Stone Mick Jagger's girl friend, Marianne Faithfull, has some nude bathtub scenes in Universal's I'll Never Forget What's 'is Name. But they're earmarked "for Europe only." ... You will see blonde, beautiful Marianne more decorously garbed in Mirovskyette with Alain Delon ... Jo Van Fleet's distant cousin, Richard Van Fleet, has signed a contract with Universal which, like Paramount, is on a youth-aligning spree. Jo is sure of an Oscar nomination for her brief scenes in Cool Hand Luke as Paul Newman's dying mother.

Katherine Bann, the young brunette actress in The Graduate, is off and away with her career. In addition to The Ski Bum, Sam Levene will star her in A Nice Girl Like Me. And Steve McQueen wants her to co-star with him in Bullet. At the moment Kate is starring with Tony Franciosa in A Man Called Gannon.

Marlon Brando, who has lost some of his hair, didn't bother to dye his locks blond for his role in The Night of the Following Day. He wears a wig. It's easier on thinning hair Terence Stamp and Peter O'Toole use the dye pot when they turn blond for their pictures.

Clare Bloom couldn't have been happier to learn that husband Rod Steiger's beach house at Malibu is still rented. They are living in an apartment at the Chateau Marmont while they make a movie together. Rod loves the sea. Claire says she is strictly a city girl.

Whatever happened to Vanessa Redgrave's "Romance" with young Franco Nero? Was it a look-up for their Camelot picture? Of course, silly.

Life Is Living Now DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Newspaper reports reveal that the general life expectancy of the population continues to be extended. But man is still not content; every day the search continues to discover ways and means to add more years to human life.

Man's life-span is indeed longer now than ever before — but no matter how long, it is always too short. Life is too short — to spend it all on preparing to live. Life itself is "living," yet the experiences which make life worth living are fleeting and irreplaceable.

Our son learns to talk but once. Our daughter begins to walk but once in our lifetime. Miss these, and the likes of these, and you will never recapture their joy and adventure.

Our little ones are five, or eight, or 13, only once in their, and in our, lifetime. If we are too busy to live these years with them — nothing can bring these back. No wealth, no fame, not "all your piety and wit."

Blindness to life's irreplaceable moments steals from us the beautiful memories that are ours to have and to hold. But we are robbed by our own hands of the well-being we seek by our facile and object worshipping to "be all and unworshipping be all."

Life is too short to be little. Life is much too precious to waste it on the vicious cycle of petty vengeance.

Many who have vowed: "I'll get even with him if it's the last thing I do," find that it is the last thing; and that in the process of avenging, they drain from their own lives what they accused their "enemy" of robbing them. "She won't get away with it, no matter what she does!" The cost, we may yet discover, is often nothing less than happiness.

What have we left when the price has been paid? Life is too short to tell it so short! A young lad writing a birthday note to his aunt sent along a postscript that read:

"And may you live every day of your life." Here is a wish and a prayer each of us has the power to fulfill. Life is too short — not to live it!

Vietnam Doctor ExplainsGas Letter Not for Politics

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Alje Vennema, former director of Canada's medical aid program in South Vietnam, said Wednesday night he had treated about 20 victims of gas used by U.S. forces in Vietnam.

Vennema said four persons — a woman and three children — died. The 20 cases he treated were non-combatant civilians, he said.

Vennema, 35, arrived at Toronto International Airport Wednesday night on the last leg of his journey from Saigon to Burlington, Ont. His tour of duty ended Jan. 10.

UPROAR SPARKED

A letter Vennema sent earlier this month to Dr. E. W. Pfeiffer, a Montana zoology professor, caused an uproar when it was published.

In the letter, Vennema said the United States was using gases that "not only can cripple and kill but actually have done so."

The U.S. Defence Department said no lethal gases are being used. The gases are of the "common, riot-control variety" such as tear gas, the department said.

DEATH ADMITTED

The defence department statement admitted that "if a person is trapped in a confined area where tear gas is used, he would be asphyxiated."

Vennema said the fatalities could have been caused in part by the weakened condition of the victims brought about by malnutrition.

Vennema and Pfeiffer was guilty of a "breach of promise" when he published the letter containing his allegations.

"It was meant to be a scientific exchange of data on the effects of poisonous gases — it wasn't meant to be used for political purposes."

The Vietnamese hate "our side" for causing most of their injuries, he said, but they exempt Canadians.

NEVER BOTHERED

"By what we have done, we have put Canada on the map — especially in areas where we have set up hospitals and vaccinated the children."

The six-man Canadian medical team Vennema headed at the Quang Ngai hospital, 35 miles north of Saigon, was never attacked and never threatened, he said. Their house was the only one occupied by foreigners that did not have a guard.

Vennema goes to Ottawa today to report to the external aid office.

after a two-year period of advance study in tropical medicine in the Netherlands and the U.S., he hopes to return to Southeast Asia.

Stanfield's Visit Lifts Spirits Of B.C. Tories

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opposition leader Robert Stanfield was to arrive today for a series of speaking engagements that Tory officials hope will rekindle the Progressive Conservative flame in British Columbia.

Mr. Stanfield will spend three days in Vancouver and Kamloops in his first visit to the province since winning the Conservative leadership in Toronto last autumn.

He will be accompanied by Mrs. Stanfield and David Fulton, Conservative MP for the Kamloops riding and one of the men he beat for the leadership. Mr. Stanfield returns to Ottawa Sunday.

LIVELY INTEREST

"We are sure the lively interest in the Conservative party nationally following the election of Mr. Stanfield will spill over into B.C. and give us a new lease on life," said Malcolm Wickson, president of the B.C. Progressive Conservative Association. "The new national momentum will spark a new provincial momentum too."

Mr. Stanfield will travel to Kamloops for a Sir John A. Macdonald bell later today and returns Friday for a student rally at University of British Columbia.

MAJOR SPEECHES

He is scheduled to make two major speeches, one Friday night at a non-partisan $50-a-plate banquet here and the other at the association's annual convention banquet Saturday night. The association opens its three-day convention Friday. B.C. Tory officials hope this whirlwind of personal appearances will provide much needed shot in the arm for the provincial party federally and provincially.

A contract has been awarded for the hub of the University of Victoria's first college and construction will begin immediately, it was announced Wednesday.

Marwell Construction Ltd. of Vancouver submitted a price of $1,684,487, which was the lowest of five bids received.

Dr. Malcolm Taylor, president of the university, said the project will add a two-storey "common block" to the existing residence complex for men and women, and provide dining areas and other facilities.

SEMINAR ROOMS

Linked to it will be a building with seminar rooms, study areas and offices for faculty and staff.

The common building is expected to be completed in about 11 months, said Dr. Taylor. The smaller study and office building should be in use when the new term begins in September.

Both buildings will play major roles in the operation of the university's first college, to be formed this September with about 340 students in residence and 600 to 700 local students.

The university plans to develop at least five other colleges of a similar type over the next seven years in a project unique in Canada. The college system is designed to retain the advantages of a relatively small campus despite fast-growing enrolment. Residences for a second college are planned for completion by September, 1969.

'Wind Up CBC Assets'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Progressive Conservative Association will be asked Sunday to approve a resolution advocating liquidation of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's assets.

The resolution, outlined in a 10-point policy program to be presented at the association's three-day convention, says the corporation itself should be retained only as an operating entity for production of Canadian programs.

The policy program was drawn up by a 15-member committee of top provincial Tory officials. It was debated at a session Wednesday night and was scheduled for further discussion tonight prior to presentation at the convention.

Other recommendations include:

- A regional approach to national economic measures and controls.
- Elimination of double taxation by two levels of government on such things as succession duties, estate and gift taxes.
- Support for a national medical care plan, provided people are given the alternate of private and public plans.
- Removal of education taxation from the municipal level. The policy committee says this should be the responsibility of the provincial government with federal aid.
- Pay scales for public employees equal to those for comparable jobs in private industry.
- A new approach to collective bargaining and labor relations to give workers a full share of production.
- Governmental guarantees to protect the purchasing power of every dollar Canadians have tied up in savings.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Lieutenant-Governor George R. Pearkes will open the Greater Victoria Family and Children's Court Building, Cameron Street, today. His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes will attend the Kiwanis annual joint installation of officers on Friday in the Empress Hotel.

At B.C. House

Victorians in London who have recently called at B.C. House were Mr. Michael J. Whitfield and Mrs. C. C. Mann. Mr. Henry Stinson of Nanaimo was also among those signing the register.

Married 50 Years

On the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary Mr. and Mrs. W. Early of 915 Cook Street were entertained at a luncheon party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Almond of Windcroft. Mr. Almond proposed a toast to the happy couple. Mr. and Mrs. Early were married Jan. 15, 1918 at Strathmillo, Fife, and lived in Edinburgh for 44 years before coming to Canada six years ago, and have resided in Victoria for the past four years. Later this month Mr. and Mrs. Early will be celebrating with their family on the arrival from Winnipeg of their only daughter and her husband, Major and Mrs. Alastair Copland, and their two sons from Vancouver.

Killam-Dochtermann

Gold Horseshoe Something Old

A gold horseshoe pin belonging to her grandmother was the something old talisman for Stephanie Gale Dochtermann when she became the bride of Mr. Donald Everette Killam. A ring also belonging to the bride's grandmother was used for the double-ring ceremony performed by Rev. G. A. Kerr at St. John the Baptist Church, Duncan.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Dochtermann, Cowichan Lake Road, Duncan, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Everette Scott Killam, Prince George.

The bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of peau d'elephant which she made herself. In empire style the gown featured three-quarter length sleeves and was trimmed with lace. Her waist-length veil fell from a self-fabric bow and yellow roses tipped with gold were in her cascade bouquet. Maid of honor Miss Anne Bule of Victoria, and bridesmatron Mrs. Lothar Wendland of Fraser Lake, B.C., were gowned alike in gold taffeta floor-length dresses styled after the bride's gown. They wore gold bow headresses and carried yellow, bronze and white chrysanthemums.

Mr. Wendland was best man. Ushering were Mr. Brian Gourile of Prince George, Mrs. Christian Dochtermann and Mr. Mark Dochtermann, bride's brothers.

A supper reception followed in the Tzouhalem Hotel. Mr. Ben Bethel proposed the toast to the bride.

Discontent Blamed On Family

LONDON (AP) — A British social anthropologist says "the family" and the older generations are the root of society's discontents.

"Far from being the bases of the good society, the family with its narrow privacy and tawdry secrets is the source of all our discontents," said Edmund Leach, provost of King's College, Cambridge.

"The family looks inward upon itself, there is an intensification of emotional stress between husband and wife, and parents and children."

He spoke in a lecture broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corp.

Defending the young people of today, Leach said society had failed to create a world fit for young people to live in and this failure was marked by "rabid hostility" toward the young.

"The young go out of their way to look unconventional, and the old react by believing that the young really are unconventional," he said, adding: "Tension between the generations is normal for any society, but the present anxiety of British parents seem altogether out of proportion."

Gift of English China

A personal gift of fine English china was presented to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes by Woodward's Stores. Presentation was made Wednesday morning at Government House by Mr. Courtney Haddock (second from right), manager of the Victoria store. Woodward's had arranged with two English fine china firms, Spode, and Royal Crown Derby, to make up the special sets for this presentation. Spode's Queen's Gate luncheon set is in a formal pattern and contains a luncheon plate specially decorated for the Centennial year with the B.C. Dogwood emblem featured. The Royal Crown Derby Posies set, suitable for breakfast or tea, is in an informal floral design. At left, Mrs. A. D. Pedersen, secretary to Mr. Haddock, points out to His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes that their names have been inscribed on the back of the plates in the Royal Crown Derby set.

Vancouver To Be Home

A home in Vancouver is the groom's sisters, Mrs. Kim McGowan and Miss Julie Forrest of Victoria. They were dressed alike in floor-length A-line gowns of red velvet, with white fur muffs trimmed with red poinsettias. They wore matching shoes and had red velvet bows in their hair.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hargrave of Durham, Ont., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Forrest, Victoria. Rev. A. G. MacLeod officiated at the afternoon ceremony, at which Mr. Goldie Hargrave of Calgary gave his niece in marriage.

For her wedding gown the bride chose white peau de sole fashioned in traditional style with fitted waist and a full skirt, extending into a cathedral train. A headpiece of organza roses and lily-of-the-valley held the long veil which cascaded over her train. She carried a bouquet of arcthemum with white ribbon streamers.

Miss Doane-Jean Hargrave came from Kitchener, Ont., to be maid of honor for her sister, and secondary attendants were

Mr. Mike McNeely was best man, and ushers were Mr. Mike H. Hutchinson and Mr. Kim McGowan.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a high school girl who believes in free love. Please print my letter because there are plenty more like me and our side doesn't get very much coverage.

I am not a tramp. I come from a high class family and I make good grades. I see nothing wrong with sleeping with different boys so long as I like them and they like me — as a person, I mean.

Virginity is an old-fashioned idea that makes no sense any more. Why should a girl save herself for a man who is not making any great effort to save himself for her? In our social group I don't know of a single guy who has done much of preservation job.

Sex is an important part of marriage and I want to be the perfect wife. I feel that the practice I am getting now will be very useful when Mr. Right comes along. So you see, there are some logical and sensible arguments against virginity. And if you are fair, as you claim to be, you will print my letter. — MISS HONEST

Dear Miss: If you are sleeping around so you will be experienced for Mr. Right you can stop now. Mr. Right will view your list of bed partners as impressive credentials. In fact, he might get the idea that you are a bit of an alley cat.

I don't deceive myself into believing my advice will cut any mustard with you. Toots, but for the girls who have not yet lost the Great Debate, I'd like to say this: In so far as sex is concerned, practice does NOT make perfect. It does make juicy conversation in locker rooms and, of course, it can also make babies.

Dear Ann Landers: I read recently that a state school for mentally retarded children in Boston has accepted 300 pairs of old shoes from someone who had been saving them for 30 years. The shoe maker received wide acclaim for this "thriftiness and generosity."

The whole thing made me sick to my stomach. Old, misshapen shoes can ruin a person's feet for the rest of his life. Many retarded children cannot speak well enough to let another person know what is bothering them.

I would like to pose a question to the fine citizens of Boston: Is this the best your state can do for its retarded children? — PARENT OF A RETARDED CHILD

Dear Parent: Thank you for your letter. If a Bostonian will come up with an answer I will print it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband died seven months ago. We had a fine marriage and his sudden death was a terrible blow to me.

For the first several months I couldn't even think of going out and enjoying myself. Now I am feeling stronger and I would like to accept some of the invitations my friends have so generously extended. My husband's sister says it would be disrespectful to my husband's memory if I did not honor the mourning period of one year. Do you agree? — WANT TO DO WHAT'S RIGHT

Dear Want to: No. Life is for the living. If you feel that you would like to socialize now, do so. It's how you treat a man when he's alive that counts.

Students Read Bible

Junior League Auction

Members of the Queen Alexandra Junior League held a white elephant party at the Mount Tabor home of Mrs. D. Adair. This is an annual event in which each member brings a white elephant gaily wrapped with a poem attached, giving a small clue as to what might be inside. It is then auctioned off to the highest bidder.

Mrs. J. Crockett was convener of the affair and Mrs. D. Adair attended to the punch. Each guest was greeted at the door by Mrs. Adair and was instructed to place her gift in a decorated box. Mrs. Crockett then presented the president, Mrs. B. Bertola, with a corsage and early arriver, Mrs. L. Patterson and late arriver, Mrs. J. Clarke with token gifts. Mrs. Adair received a floral decoration for her table and a charm for her bracelet. The auctioneers were Mrs. C. Booth and Mrs. T. Chalmers. Miss M. McCall was treasurer.

Italian Fashions

Cool Colors Hot News

By LEONORA DODSWORTH

ROME (AP) — Cool colors — that's the hottest news from the Italian spring-summer fashion collections, in their fourth day of showings Tuesday.

Designer after designer is driving the point home. Frosty white and pastels appear to have been bleached even paler with chalk. This, rather than any drastic change in line, is the headline hitter.

As always in the Italian collections, fabrics are big scene-stealers.

Intricate intarsia work impressed buyers at Mila Schon. Inserts and appliques in flower shapes, circles, chevrons and undulating stripes had the fashion crowd gasping at their intricacy and impeccable workmanship. These motifs were used with beautiful discretion on suits and unlined coats in cream-smooth wools.

Colors were pale and melting — powdery grey, ice-cold blue and, of course, white.

Funnel necklines, yokes and short capes kept the eye up high on suits. Hip-length jackets were softly tailored and sometimes slacked belted.

Skirts just grazed the knees. Out just off the straight, they had pinched-up side seams that gave more precision to the line.

Big enamel brooches, flat and circular or shaped like flattened flowers, were a new and handsome jewelry note.

Drifting, delicate chiffons for formal wear were dotted with big, stitched-on spots and crescent moons which gave further proof of the skill of Italian seamstresses.

Sheer silk organdie dresses with chaste Quaker collars, triple-layered to match the long fluttery sleeves had a young, romantic look.

SLIDES OF ARCTIC

Mr. T. Hughes, experienced Arctic traveller, will show slides of the Arctic in St. Martin's Parish Hall, Obed Avenue West, Friday, Jan. 19 at 8 p.m. under the auspices of the Evening Branch of the Anglican Church Women.

Maxi-coats with big, handsome collars and high placed belts were shown at Antonelli.

They came in classic pepper and salt tweeds and were worn over shantung pyjamas.

Crossword-puzzle checked wools in pale, pretty colors on white made smart city coats. Antonelli's discotheque dresses rattled like bead curtains with flying hula skirts made from sequinned fringe.

Guatemala

Many Nabbed In Shootings

GUATEMALA CITY (AP)—Police made large numbers of arrests Wednesday in the search for the assassins of two U.S. military officers. But terrorists machine-gunned a wealthy landowner to death in a continuing wave of violence.

The farmer, Alfonso Alejos de la Cerda, 77, was cut down in his car in a residential suburb of this capital. His driver was wounded.

The Americans were slain Tuesday by machine-gun fire from a speeding car.

A clandestine communique signed by the Rebel Armed Forces—a pro-Cuba group—claimed it killed the two Americans because they were associated with Guatemalan Army groups who "dedicated themselves to sow terror and death."

U.S. Army Col. John D. Weber Jr., 47, of Houston, head of the U.S. military advisory group in Guatemala since 1966, and Lt.-Col. Ernest A. Munro, 40, of Rockland, Me., head of the U.S. naval section, were gunned down near Guatemalan Air Force headquarters.

TWO INJURED

U.S. Marine Sgt. Harry L. Green, 41, of Omaha, Neb., the group's communications adviser, was wounded and reported in fair condition. U.S. Army Sgt. Maj. John R. Foster, 42, a native of Seattle, was struck in the arm by shattered glass but released from hospital after treatment.

In all five persons were killed here Tuesday.

TWO SHOT

Former Guatemalan congressman Alejandro Silva Falla, 40, marked for death by rightist extremists, died in a burst of machine-gun fire. His bodyguard exchanged fire with the gunmen and was killed.

Three men in a car fired at Col. Manuel Francisco Sosa Avila, director of police, and one of his guards shot one of the assassins to death outside the director's home. The car screeched to a halt and two others fled on foot.

SLIGHTLY HURT

An army communique also reported Capt. Justo Rodriguez Diaz and a military policeman, Mauro Rodas, were slightly wounded when assailants fired on them as they emerged from army barracks.

The police roundup was carried out under a decree of modified martial law declared shortly after the Americans were killed. They were the first U.S. victims of the wave of rightist and leftist terror that has claimed more than 1,000 lives in the last year and a half.

SECURITY RING

The government tightened security around the U.S. embassy and other American installations.

The Rebel Armed Forces' communique said the U.S. military mission has "ordered the Guatemalan Army to create groups of assassins" against guerrillas.

These groups, the communique said, had engaged in "genocidal work" that had resulted in the death of nearly 4,000 Guatemalans. Therefore, it added, it had "decided to mete out justice."

In Wake of Storms

Ontario Mopping Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shovels, snowplows and service crews continued a clean-up campaign in southwestern Ontario Wednesday as civic officials lobbied with the provincial government for funds to cover the cost of the worst storm to hit the area in 20 years.

Parts of Northern Ontario still were recording sub-zero temperatures while milder weather brought two to four inches of snow to southeastern Newfoundland.

In London, Ont., 48 persons housed by the city's emergency corps began returning to their homes as electrical service was restored for the first time since the weekend blizzard.

Bell Telephone Co. reported that 2,500 customers in Toronto still were without service. A company spokesman said all lines were expected to be repaired by the end of the week.

Near-normal temperatures and an absence of snow was expected to aid clean-up operations in Toronto and London areas.

Vancouver was the warmest spot in Canada Wednesday with a temperature of 47. Calgary expected a high of about 40 degrees today despite wind gusts.

Saskatchewan temperatures continued to range between 20 and 30 above in the southern part of the province, but in the northern areas they still were below zero.

Light snow or freezing drizzle hit some areas of Manitoba Wednesday, but it was to be sunny and mild today.

Repulsed Invaders Vow To Come Back in Japan

SASEBO, Japan (AP)—Beaten back trying to invade the U.S. Navy base here, 800 leftist Zengakuren students left by train Wednesday. They promised to return for new demonstrations against the visit of the American nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise.

In Tokyo, about 8,000 students demonstrated in a park near the U.S. embassy and the residence of the Japanese premier. About 20 persons were injured when a clash broke out between students and police near the premier's home. Others staged a sit-down outside the U.S. embassy but were removed by the police.

ROCKS PITCHED

Helmeted students, who arrived here from Hakata after a three-hour train ride, used staves and rocks in a pitched battle with 1,000 police who fought back with fire hoses and tear gas. The incidents, bloodiest in Sasebo's history, took place at Hirase Bridge just outside the base entrance.

By police count, 135 students, police and onlookers were injured. Twenty-seven students were arrested.

MOST VIOLENT

It was the most violent incident in the series of left-wing demonstrations that has been building up in protest against the arrival of the Enterprise later this week.

The students belong to the "Sampa" faction of Zengakuren—a faction so violent-prone that even the Communists reject them.

AGITATED AIR

A Sampa spokesman said his group's objective is to "draw public attention to the Enterprise, just as the Zengakuren rioting in 1960 helped force then U.S. President Eisenhower to cancel a scheduled visit to Japan."

Sasebo, city of 250,000, took on an agitated air as groups for and against the Enterprise's visit staged rival rallies and argued against each other with loudspeakers at intersections.

Guilty Plea Entered By Portland Youth

An 18-year-old Portland youth who apparently came to Victoria to escape the district court's court Wednesday to eight counts of false pretences involving a stolen credit card.

William James Ryan, also known as Richard Lawrence Wilson, was remanded to today for sentence.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Ryan was convicted in Oregon last year of burglary and failed to appear for sentence.

"I DISREGARD THAT" "It is believed he left the United States to avoid being caught," Mr. Birkett said. Magistrate William Ostler replied: "I disregard that entirely. It is nothing to do with me."

The offences occurred between Dec. 9 and 20, court was told. Ryan used a California gasoline credit company card, which he knew to be stolen, to buy goods worth $431 from city, Seaside and Central Seaside service stations.

SHAWNIGAN SENTENCE Most of the goods were recovered, court was told, some in a used condition.

Ryan told Magistrate Ostler he had been in Victoria about 2 1/2 months.

Mr. Birkett told the court Ryan was sentenced Wednesday morning at Shawigan Lake to nine months in jail with an indeterminate term of 12 months, after being convicted on two counts of false pretences.

Gordon Charles, 21, of Cooper, and Freddie Charlie, 26, of Brentwood, were given suspended sentences and placed on $500 bonds for two years for a Jan. 10 break-in.

Both men pleaded guilty last week, and court was told they stole $112 worth of food from Don's Food Market, 99 Menzies, after breaking the glass in the store's front door to get in.

Nineteen-year-old Roy Charles Miller has been sleeping during the past week in a barn on the McRae estate, a bomb shelter near Spencer Castle and in parked cars, court was told.

Plaintiff

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — George Albricht's damage suit against "God and Company" has been thrown out of court by a judge who called the action "frivolous and disrespectful."

Circuit Judge R. O. Morrow, who dismissed the action Tuesday, accused Albricht of trying to ridicule the law.

Albricht denied it and said he would refile the suit. He said he may take it to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Albricht filed Monday against "God and Company" in nearby Lake Worth for $25,000 to compensate him for an injury a jury ruled he suffered through "an act of God."

After his original damage suit was lost he decided that if the injury was caused by God then God is liable.

"This Act of God thing just gives the insurance companies an easy out," Albricht said. "I think I should at least have a chance to plead my case in a courtroom."

Bookie Trial Delayed

CALGARY (CP) — Seventeen men charged with conspiring to engage in bookmaking and the business of betting were remanded indefinitely Wednesday, pending a ruling from the Alberta Supreme Court on a defence application to have the charges quashed.

Defence counsel Milt Harradence, acting for 11 of the men, Tuesday filed a notice of motion with the supreme court saying that the information sworn out alleges more than one conspiracy.

BIG RAID The men were arrested during raids in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Vancouver in November.

Harradence said the application to have the charges quashed will likely be heard in March. A ruling could take several months.

The men are charged with conspiring to engage in bookmaking or the business of betting and with conspiring to aid or assist in the commission of an offence under section 177 of the Criminal Code of Canada.

Miller, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty to vagrancy and was remanded to Jan. 24 for a pre-sentence report.

Three Men Remanded On Damage Charges

Three men arrested in Sidney Monday night after windows in 16 cars were smashed pleaded guilty Tuesday to charges of wilful damage.

Lola Francis Pelkey, 21, Albert John Pelkey, 20, and Robert Charles Wayne Pelkey, 18, all of East Saanich Indian Reserve, were remanded by Magistrate D. G. Ashby in custody to Jan. 27 for sentencing.

Lemay Lawyer Ponders

Motion of Non-Suit Lost

MONTREAL (CP) — Leo Rene Maranda, lawyer for bank burglary suspect Georges Lemay, was to decide today whether he would present a defence case following dismissal of a motion of non-suit.

Judge Jacques Trahan rejected Mr. Maranda's motion of non-suit Wednesday.

The motion had been strongly presented by the lawyer Tuesday and Wednesday and contained the charges that several key Crown witnesses were biased, dishonest and unreliable.

HEATED WORDS The Crown's case was completed Monday. If Mr. Maranda decides to present a defence case in his trial, it will begin today. If he decides against this the judge will render judgment Friday.

Wednesday's session was full of heated words between Mr. Maranda and Judge Trahan. Finally Mr. Maranda told the judge:

"If you think Belanger and Lajole are competent witnesses, I can't change your mind." Judge Trahan then rejected the motion.

LATER DISMISSED Yvon Belanger and Jacques Lajole between them spent 25 out of 38 court days testifying against Lemay, 42, who is charged with burglary and conspiracy in a $633,603 bank theft in 1961. The trial began Oct. 30, 1967.

Belanger, 27, is the brother-in-law of Roland Primeau, who was sentenced in 1963 to 13 years for his part in the bank vault break-in. Belanger was arrested and charged for the crime, but was later dismissed, and admitted at both the Primeau and the Lemay trial that he stole $5,000 from his brother-in-law. Lajole, 46, pleaded guilty in 1963 to his part in the theft and served a one-day sentence after spending two years in jail awaiting trial.

Plane Crash in Japan Kills 12 U.S. Fliers

TOKYO (Reuters)—Twelve crew members of a U.S. Navy reconnaissance plane were killed when the plane crashed Tuesday on a mountain in the Japanese island of Shikoku, the navy said Wednesday.

Pills Still Free

Clinic Ignores Muggeridge

LONDON (AP) — A row at Edinburgh University about birth-control pills for women students has exploded into a nationwide controversy.

It started when Malcolm Muggeridge, author and professional cynic, resigned as rector of the Scottish university because of student demands that the pill be made freely available.

Muggeridge, 64, scathingly accused students of "slobbering debauchery." He linked the pill with drugs as "a tenth-rate sort of escapism and indulgence."

But Helen Brook, founder of an independent organization to give sex advice to young people, says she will go ahead with her plan to open a birth-control centre in Edinburgh.

"Life cannot stop for Mr. Muggeridge," she said.

"Nothing he says will deter us. How can he not wish to prevent unwanted children being born?"

Five Brook centres are already operating—two in London, one in Cambridge, one in Birmingham and another in Liverpool.

GETTING THROUGH

The attitude at London University is similar—that it's better to prescribe the pill than to risk unwanted pregnancies.

"I think it should be obligatory for girls to take the pill for the three years they are at university," said a doctor at the university's health service centre.

But Muggeridge's message may be getting through.

Students at Edinburgh University, whose representatives had earlier denounced Muggeridge for his stand on the pill, gave him a vote of support by 479 to 414 Tuesday.

NAIROBI, Kenya — Baron Werner von Blumenthal, 64, who retired in 1962 as a director of Germany's big Opel Car Co. to begin a new life as a game conservationist, was trampled to death by an elephant as he walked up the slopes of Tanzania's Mount Meru.

The baron had helped stamp out poaching which threatened the rhino and several other animals and had been made an honorary warden of the Mount Meru game reserve, where he died.

VIENNA — Austrian Chancellor Josef Klaus dropped four cabinet members in a bid to overcome declining government popularity. Vice-chancellor Fritz Bock was replaced by Hermann Witzmann, strongman of Klaus' People's party.

Stephan Koren, Klaus' chief economic adviser, took over the key finance ministry.

CAPE TOWN — Dr. Christiaan Barnard said second heart transplant patient Philip Blalberg is progressing so well that Barnard plans a third transplant as early as March.

Name of the next patient wasn't given. In Palo Alto, Calif., Mike Kasperak continued slow but steady improvement after his transplant.

CARACAS, Venezuela — Illiterate farmer Bonifacio Duerr, 23, had farm "helper" Elio Gonzalez, 12, fill out a 92-cent horse race betting form for him. Duerr won $105,000 and will give the boy $16,000.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. — Pathologist Dr. J. F. Booth told an inquest Frederick Leo Thomas, 21, was literally scared to death when his sports car plunged into a canal Nov. 13. He said Thomas died of a larynx spasm caused by fear and was asphyxiated before hitting the water.

EDMONTON — Brenda Gunning, 33, was committed to stand trial on a charge of non-capital murder in the death of her husband Michael, 30, a city policeman shot with his own service revolver as he entered the family apartment last Oct. 17.

JOHANNESBURG — Lewis Meyerson, 31, was jailed 13 years for his part in a $10-800,000 South African revenue-stamp fraud. Meyerson is one of three brothers alleged to have devised a scheme to flood the country with the stamps, widely used by lawyers and real estate agents.

LONDON — Francois Jordan, former wife of British Nazi leader Colin Jordan, was jailed 18 months for conspiring to set fire to synagogues in 1965.

Scream, Then Death Repeated by Sister

SANTA MARIA, Calif. (AP) — A young housewife awoke, gave a piercing 10-second scream, then died of no apparent cause Wednesday—just as a sister died mysteriously in 1963, police reported.

The woman's husband, S.Sgt. Robert Rush of the army, told police his wife, Patricia, 23, just stopped breathing. He and a policeman both tried mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and later an ambulance crew used a resuscitator.

Rush, who returned four days ago from a year in Vietnam, said his wife woke him at 6 a.m., screamed and collapsed. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs.

Everett Stephens, said that in 1963 their daughter Beverly, 17, died similarly.

Beverly emerged in 1963 from a swimming pool at Porterville, Calif., Stephens said, gave a horrified look around, screamed for 10 seconds, stopped breathing and died. An autopsy and special tests by doctors failed to disclose a cause of death.

Said Mrs. Stephens of the second daughter's death: "I'm positive it was the same thing." The Stephens have two sons and two other daughters. "Naturally," Stephens said, "we are now very concerned and anxious about my other daughter."

Emergency Measures Plans Feel Economy Axe Slash

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's economy axe has come down hard on the Emergency Measures Organization, a government source said Wednesday.

The source said letters have gone out to the provinces saying the federal government is going to cut its participation in some of the big EMO projects in which it shares costs with the provincial governments.

In the current fiscal year ending March 31, the federal government has earmarked $5,200,000 for grants to the provinces and municipalities for civil defence and related purposes under the EMO program.

It could not immediately be learned just how much less would be spent during the 1968-69 fiscal year.

But the source said the cuts will apply to some of the more costly items in the program, such as federal contributions for purchase of emergency equipment, for stockpiling of food and medical supplies and in areas of "large expenditures for training large groups" in civil defence and disaster techniques.

The letters said the federal government will also contribute to those activities which are concerned strictly with peace-time disasters. Only those with some relation to military emergencies would be continued.

Health Officer Urges Food-Handling Tests

TRAIL (CP) — A provincial government health director recommended Tuesday that municipalities require operators of eating establishments to pass food-handling examinations.

The recommendation was made by Dr. Nick Schmidt, director of the West Kootenay Health Unit, following his investigation of food poisoning of 300 people from a bean salad served at a New Year's Eve banquet.

Dr. Schmidt said municipalities should conduct the examinations and they should be both written and oral.

He said tests showed the food poisoning New Year's Eve was caused by a heavy growth of a germ called B. cereus on the bean salad.

Stricken Child Alters Career

Sullivan

Edward Sullivan had been teaching for some years when, in 1956, he helped the polio-stricken son of a friend in his spare time and became interested in a new branch of teaching.

Because of that interest, Mr. Sullivan now is principal of Victoria's Victor School for the Retarded.

His work is like that of no other principal in the district, although his school resembles many others. In six classrooms he and his staff of six teach 60 youngsters, all retarded from one cause or another, and ranging in age from 6 to 19.

Working on the basis of what a child can do, rather than what he or she cannot do, the staff works daily to build confidence in the children, to have them accepted as human beings.

Mr. Sullivan was born in Croydon, Surrey, and educated at Archbishop Tennyson's Grammar School in South London.

He started out after school to be a chartered accountant, but an "interruption" in 1939 resulted in his being a wireless operator-air gunner in RAF bombers for six years, both in Europe and Asia.

Back in England he found things had changed, and he no longer was keen on accountancy. Instead, he heeded an urgent call for teachers.

After working for a time as a post office engineer he took teacher training at Bognor Regis, then took his first post in a rural school — Wimbrough Green, Surrey.

It was after seven years there, when he was deputy headmaster, that he became interested in the new field, and trained for it at a hospital school, Challey Heritage, where there were about 200 boys and girls.

Wanting a residential school, he transferred in 1960 to Margate where he remained until coming out to Canada to join a sister living in Montreal. No suitable work being available there he moved west to Prince George to teach an occupational class in junior high for a year.

Thinking he might like Victoria's climate better, he wrote here to enquire about openings — and received an instant answer.

His first post here was in the little school for retarded on Joan Crescent, and he moved to Victoria when that school opened in 1966.

Married and with two daughters — one at Mount Douglas and one at Lansdowne, Mr. Sullivan has had little time for hobbies beyond photography and gardening. — E.M.S.

Town Runs On Wires

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Construction of a permanent all-electrical community, specially designed for northern living, will start this spring at Churchill Falls in central Labrador.

Plans were announced Wednesday by Donald McPharland, president of Churchill Falls Labrador Corp. Ltd., who said the new community will mark a milestone in the ability of Canadians to adapt to northern conditions.

The community will house the permanent operating and maintenance staff of the Churchill Falls hydroelectric power development now under construction.

It will take about 1½ years to build and have a permanent population in excess of 1,000 after completion of the power development in 1976.

At present, construction personnel and their families live in a temporary trailer town.

Plans for the permanent community feature a town centre where public services and facilities, from school to supermarket, will be under one roof.

Special arrangements to provide privacy are being made. For example, houses will be built on only one side of the street providing more space and no back-to-back yards.

This arrangement will allow snowplows to clear snow away from, instead of into driveways.

Snow-clearing is a major project in the area, where yearly snowfalls average 135 inches and snow covers the ground from mid-October to early June.

At Ottawa

Moscow Man Miffed

OTTAWA (CP) — Vladimir Mikhailov, parliamentary correspondent for the Soviet news agency Tass, left for Moscow Wednesday, saying the government had declined to renew his visa.

A spokesman at the Soviet embassy confirmed that the correspondent's visa had not been renewed.

Mikhailov attributed his visa difficulties to discrimination by the Canadian government because of articles he wrote about anti-Soviet demonstrations here.

An external affairs department spokesman said the question of Mikhailov's visa still was under consideration by Canadian authorities but he had been given permission to remain in Canada pending a decision.

Government officials had been "given to understand" the correspondent was returning to the Soviet Union on leave.

The spokesman said Mikhailov's reporting, including his reporting of the Nov. 7 demonstration at the Soviet Embassy, was not an issue as far as Canadian officials were concerned.

NDP Seeks Seat

Norman Levi, provincial president of the New Democratic Party, announced Wednesday he would seek the NDP nomination in Vancouver South, where a byelection is to be held this spring. The seat was left vacant by the death last fall of Scored Tom Bate.

No date has yet been set for the byelection vote, but the NDP has announced it will hold a nominating convention Jan. 28. The keynote speaker will be Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

Mr. Levi trailed his closest Scored opponent, Mr. Bate, by 2,600 votes in the Sept. 12, 1966, provincial general election in the then newly created two-member riding of Vancouver South.

Postponed

PARIS (UPI) — The first test flight of the British-French Concorde supersonic jetliner has been indefinitely postponed. Sud Aviation, the French builder, said "the possible date" of the first flight now will be announced "within several weeks."

Buffalo Shots Fatal

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Three Buffalo, weighing from 800 to 1,000 pounds each, died Tuesday after they were administered tranquillizers in preparation for their move to a new pasture.

The shaggy animals required large doses of tranquillizing drugs and succumbed to the effects despite a veterinarian's efforts to revive them with an antidote and stimulant drugs.

Sicily

Rescuers Dig In Fear

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI) — Sicilians clawed with giant machines and their bare hands Wednesday into the rubble that was once their homes, trying to reach trapped earthquake survivors.

Moans of trapped men and women filtered through the debris and spurred those trying to save them.

The odor of sulphur seeping through great cracks in the earth filled the cold, still air.

THOUSANDS WORK

Thousands of rescuers worked with bulldozers, shovels and their hands searching for survivors of four days of earthquakes. The workers were jittery, unsure of the earth beneath them. Three fresh tremors jolted western Sicily Tuesday.

The Italian national police listed the official death toll as 352. But the ministry of public works said it would climb to "more than 250." At least 20,000 Sicilians were homeless. Police in Palermo said 1,500 were missing.

AID POURS IN

Aid poured in from the West and Europe. Medicine, food, blankets, clothing and water were being rushed to stricken towns. But landslides and craters in the roads slowed its delivery to victims.

Relief supplies piled up on docks because frightened dockworkers did not show up.

At least a dozen villages and towns were virtually levelled by the earthquakes — a series of 30 shocks and tremors that began Sunday.

Bennett:

Relax, B.C., Relax

The people of B.C. have no cause to "panic" over economic difficulties, Premier Bennett said Wednesday.

As an antidote to possible cases of economic jitters, the premier advised, "live as usual" but avoid any reckless action. He added: "There should be proper restraint but there still should be proper business."

Mr. Bennett made the statements in his office while being interviewed by Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi, who was acting as moderator for a Lower Mainland radio station hot line program.

PHONE INTERVIEW

The premier had been asked by Mr. Gagliardi in a telephone interview to tell listeners about the "excellent" condition of B.C. government finances. Mr. Bennett said B.C. was in better financial shape than any other government in Canada.

Later, Mr. Bennett told reporters here that one reason he went on the program was to explain to the public "it is all wrong" to suggest the government was using funds earmarked for school construction to pay for its hydro projects.

"Hydro money has nothing to do with education," the premier said. "The two are not competitive. Hydro's money comes from borrowing and electricity rates. But there is a lot of confusion in the public mind about this factor."

LBJ's State of Union:

Accent on Negative

WASHINGTON (L.A.T.) — Noting "a certain restlessness" in the land, President Johnson talked Wednesday night to the nation of its troubles as he delivered an election year State of the Union message.

The accent was on the negative:

- He offered little hope for a quick peace in Vietnam as he engaged in another round of semantic duelling with the North Vietnamese leaders.

- He offered no new domestic programs to the general population and only expanded old ones to the impoverished in the urban ghettos.

- He renewed his demands for a tax increase and protection of the dollar to fight inflation and the balance of payments problems.

He said he will ask Congress to repeal the law which requires a 25 per cent "gold cover" for dollars in circulation. He said this would free U.S. gold reserves and hold steady the international exchange value of the dollar.

- He asked Congress to deal with such consumer problems as unsafe and substandard goods, rising medical costs and crime in the streets.

- He disclosed the budget for the 1969 fiscal year to be sent to Congress shortly will call for spending of $186,000,000,000 under a new unified budget format, with a deficit of $8,000,000,000 if Congress enacts his tax increase. If Congress fails to approve his 10-per-cent surtax, the 1969 deficit will be $20,000,000,000, he said, the same as in the current year.

Beyond tipping North Vietnam off to the fact that this country would like to discuss "a really true ceasefire" if negotiations ever did begin, he offered no hope that talks were in the offing.

He reiterated what has now come to be known as the "San Antonio formula" for beginning talks:

That the United States would stop the bombing of North Vietnam if the cessation meant "talks would take place promptly and with reasonable hopes that they would be productive."

That appeared to be a direct reply to the spate of apparent Communist peace feelers that began Dec. 29 when North Vietnamese foreign minister Nguyen Duy Trinh said there "will be" talks if the bombing stops. Previously Hanoi had

Space
Plans
Knifed

HOUSTON (UPI) — The U.S. space agency has slashed in half its once-ambitious program for manned space exploration after the Apollo flights to the moon because of budget cut-backs, it was learned Wednesday.

One of the projects cancelled from the program known as Apollo Applications was a space station in which astronauts would live for up to a year.

Also out of the picture, for the foreseeable future, is a complete series of advanced moon exploration missions which scientists had recommended to the space agency.

All that remains now in the program is a single embryonic space station and sun-watching telescope. Astronauts will live in that station for one 28-day

Spider Biology --- First Hand

Basic biology of spiders, even under glass, was illustrated for 11-year-old Suzanne May, 1111 Dominion, after family friend gave her black widow.

Curious creeper produced egg sac, from which sprang 50 young. Now, as little ones disappear, survivors ominously keep doubling in size daily.

PEARSON MUZZLES
CANDIDATES

By RON COLLISTER, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Pearson, at a secret meeting in his home, has laid down the law to the leadership candidates.

The message was simple and blunt:

Public cabinet feuding must end and there must not be a repetition of the Halifax spectacle last weekend, when candidates battled over medicare.

The five candidates, two declared and three undeclared, were called to Pearson's home as reports of threatened resignations spiced up the leadership race.

The five men were: Transport Minister Paul Hellyer and Health Minister Allan MacEachen, both declared candidates; External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who declares Friday; Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, who declares today, and Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, whose plans are not yet clear.

Four-Point Manifesto

Pearson issued a four-point manifesto:

- Cabinet candidates should not criticize the government in public.

- They should not accept public debate with each other.

- They should make no public declaration on medicare.

- And there should be no liquid entertaining of delegates at the Winnipeg meeting this weekend, after 10 a.m., before Mr. Pearson and the candidates speak.

Similar rules would apply at future rallies, in Montreal and Toronto.

Spokesmen for some candidates said they were happy that Pearson had laid down guidelines.

lines in private, and hoped he would do so in public.

He was out of the country, on vacation, when the candidates were deciding if they should go to Halifax last weekend.

And if he had been in Ottawa, it might have been possible to have an agreement that the candidates, except Nova Scotia's favorite son Allan MacEachen, should not go.

At present, it seems that more candidates will be at Winnipeg than were at Halifax.

After talks with Quebec's Jean Marchand and Pierre-Elliott Trudeau, Turner is reported to feel "encouraged" to try for the leadership.

There is no firm decision yet on whether or not Marchand or Trudeau will run, but it could be Trudeau.

Marchand is understood to feel that, as Quebec federal leader, his stature would be diminished if he ran — and lost.

Marchand controls the Quebec organization but Trudeau is emerging as an important candidate with rising national appeal.

Sharp declares his candidacy in Toronto, in his own constituency, tonight.

Martin declares Friday and Pearson will have a news conference the same day.

The race is warming up. Excitement is feverish. And, as some see it, it may be hard to make those guidelines stick — even through Winnipeg, in a few days time.

General
Among Dead

MINOT, N.D. (CP) — Twelve men died Wednesday morning when a giant KC-135 tanker plane crashed on take-off from Minot Air Force Base. There was one survivor.

The 13 men aboard the aircraft were all from March Air Force Base in Riverside, Calif.

The United States Air Force said Maj.-Gen. Charles M. Eisenhower, vice-commander of the 15th air force, was among those killed.

Raft Drop
Misses
Freighter

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Air Force planes failed Wednesday in an attempt to drop life rafts to a Dutch freighter reported in danger of sinking in mid-Atlantic with its own small boats either lost or disabled.

The U.S. Coast Guard said the captain of the freighter, Ocean Sprinter, released the three planes, allowing them to leave the scene.

He messaged that the ship's crew of approximately 16 would try to stay on the listing vessel through the night, the coast guard reported.

Two U.S. merchant ships were standing by the stricken freighter about 1,300 miles east of New York.

U.S. Breaks Promise

Russians Doubt
Canada Sincere

'Out of Context'

Dr. Aljo Vennema, Canadian doctor in Vietnam, arrived in Vancouver Wednesday on his way east. The CBC quoted him as saying remarks that U.S. gas attacks were injuring and killing Vietnamese civilians were "taken out of context". Charges initially stirred demands in Parliament for an investigation.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia says Canadian sales of arms to the United States cast doubt on the sincerity of Canadian government declarations that it wants to help bring about peace in Southeast Asia.

An article by A. Igrakov says export of arms and military supplies from Canada to the U.S. is growing steadily as American involvement continues in Vietnam.

SHELLS, PLANES

"Under concluded contracts Canada is delivering to the American armed forces artillery ordnance and shells, aircraft and armaments for them, radio-relaying equipment, warheads for missiles, explosives, etc. These arms are being sent from the United States to South Vietnam."

The article says use of Canadian-made arms in Vietnam aroused public indignation and protests in Canada. It says the protests stressed that the weapons sales were "incompatible with the status of Canada as a member of the International Control Commission (on Vietnam) and grossly contradicts the government's statements on the need of stopping the war in Vietnam."

Quake Hits
Brazil Area

FORTALEZA, Brazil (UPI) — An earthquake Wednesday rocked the town of Pereiro, causing widespread damage. There were no immediate reports of casualties. Ceara state officials said the quake was felt in a 25-mile area stretching to Sao Miguel in Rio Grande do Norte state.

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — Cambodian head-of-state Prince Norodom Sihanouk has accused the United States of cynically disregarding its promises and affirming its right to launch military operations inside Cambodia.

Addressing a dinner Wednesday night for visiting Yugoslav President Tito, Sihanouk said he regrets that so few countries have denounced "this scandalous arrogance and this scorn for a word of honor."

He referred to recent statements by the U.S. State Department which he described as "cynically proclaiming that America is not bound by the promises just made by the representative of President Johnson and affirming its right to launch military operations up to 16 kilometres (10 miles) inside our territory."

Later, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug quoted Tito as telling the dinner that Vietnamese peace talks now depend on the United States.

He called for the unconditional halt of bombing of North Vietnam and for recognition of the National Liberation Front — an equal partner in any negotiations.

"We're going back just as far as we possibly can," Morgen-thau said.

The suspects were identified as four former IRS agents and 22 field men, all of whom had averaged about $15,000 a year in salary. They allegedly paid bribes to an unidentified IRS inspector to quash investigations of bribe attempts of which they were suspect and to obtain confidential information about their cases.

Downed Aircraft
Buried in Snow?

VANCOUVER (CP) — An air-sea rescue centre spokesman said Wednesday an aircraft missing 10 days with three men aboard may be buried in snow in the mountains.

The aircraft might not be found for months because of the snow, said the spokesman.

Poor visibility over the Great Divide area between Alberta

and B.C. again hampered the search Wednesday for the aircraft. The search was to resume today.

Not a Feather Ruffled in Neutral Nest

By IAN STREET

The men who will clash head-on after the legislature opens one week from today met by accident here Wednesday.

Premier Bennett had dropped into the press gallery to tell reporters the government had traded in his official car — a five-year-old Lincoln — for a Cadillac.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan came in to provide some other material.

For a moment both were taken by surprise, but they recovered quickly and exchanged a warm handshake and greetings.

It didn't seem to matter that a few minutes earlier, in the same room, Mr. Strachan had referred to a cuckoo in connection with the premier. Or that a few days earlier, on his return from Palm Springs, Mr. Bennett had referred to criticism by the opposition leader as chirping of birds who come out of the bushes when the legislative session rolls around.

"How are you, Mr. Leader?" the premier said with a broad smile.

"Good to see you, Mr. Premier," Mr. Strachan replied, equally friendly.

Mr. Bennett explained that he had been inspecting preparations in the legislative chamber for the session opening Jan. 25. He came into the press gallery rooms down the corridor for the first time in about a year.

The premier told Mr. Strachan: "It's nice to meet you on this friendly ground."

"Yes," said Mr. Strachan, "It's always neutral here." Mr. Bennett then made a comment about how members of the gallery were good at asking questions, but when questioned themselves didn't give very good answers. Mr. Strachan chuckled in agreement and offered to leave if the premier wished to continue his conversation with reporters.

The premier insisted he remain, and Mr. Strachan did. A reporter mentioned that earlier in the day, during a press conference with Mr. Strachan, there had been a "discussion about birds."

An embarrassed smile crossed the face of the opposition leader, but the word "cuckoo" was not mentioned in the presence of Mr. Bennett.

(Mr. Strachan had told reporters that in reply to the premier's jibe about opposition critics, "I'm inclined to make some kind of comment about the cuckoo arriving back in town, but I won't.") He added: "I'm sure if you print that as I said it, people will get the inference."

Mr. Bennett said the new Cadillac official car was a limousine which cost "a net of $7,500" and had been obtained in the normal manner with the purchasing commission inviting bids. The Cadillac to be supplied by Morrison Motors was the low bid, he said.

'Race-Mixing Cures Problems'

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — There is hope for Indians if they mix with whites at an early age," said Leonard Antoine Wednesday.

Mr. Antoine, 39, is a nursery assistant with B.C. Forest Service on Chesterfield Street, Duncan.

His hope for a better understanding between Indians and whites is based on the belief that both races should integrate while young.

School Meetings

As a member of the Cowichan Indian band's education committee, he has been an attentive guest at Cowichan several months.

His daughter Carol, 16, attended a private school at Duncan before becoming a student at Cowichan High School. His two boys, Terry, 14, and Rodney, 8, study at Queen of Angels junior high.

Orphaned at the age of one, at Puyallup, Wash., he was adopted by the Antoine family at Duncan, who knew his Kuper Island-born father.

The young boy grew up on the Cowichan reserve and his maternal grandfather's advice "never to hate anybody" is firm in his memory. His grandfather, Alex Peter, had been chief of the Malahat band, and died a chief in 1956.

Close to Nature

"He was a wise man and he gave good counsel."

From him Leonard learned about the Indians who were born equal and who lived and died as equals. They were close to nature, which provided for them freely.

Mr. Antoine said "When a man was hungry he killed an animal to eat and then gave thanks to the Great Spirit who sent it."

"He paid honor to the animal's spirit by making use of every part of its body and wasting nothing."

"He killed only what he needed."

"Why would a man heap up carcasses to rot?"

"When the sun went down and the cold night wind rose, he reached out his hand to the forest to make a shelter and kindle a fire."

Helped Elders

"In the shadows of the fire and in the wind and the first voices of the forest he heard and saw and felt the living spirits."

"The young and the strong with their sharp eyes and quick hands brought food to those who were too old or too weak to hunt."

"A man won honor by serving others, as a hunter, a builder, a wise counsellor."

"The tribute the people paid to their leaders was to ask for help."

"Every man was a brother in spirit and each had the right to be heard with respect around the council fire."

"Each man needed another for his food, his shelter or his honor."

"Each had a right and a duty to share with his brother."

Same People

"Even though the villages of the people were scattered farther than a man could travel in many days, and even though they spoke with many tongues, they were all children of the Great Spirit and he spoke to them in their hearts."

"In many villages today the people have not forgotten the ways of their fathers."

"When the white man arrived life for the Indians changed slowly at first."

Mr. Antoine said in the early days and during the first few decades in the 20th century Indians were treated like "amiable children" by the white officials "many of whom were kindly and well intentioned."

Land Taken

He said the white society tried to fulfill its obligation by pouring out money. Indians feel "they have a special claim to consideration because of the loss of vast tracts of land which were their inheritance."

Mr. Antoine said the introduction of the community development program became the first step for Indians to re-discover pride in their tradition and culture, and to develop leadership, learn to assess and to solve problems through their own initiative.

"These policies have demanded a high degree of wisdom, patience and understanding from both Indians and white people involved. However it has created hope among many people who are deeply concerned with Indians' well being."

Never Exist

Mr. Antoine contends if white and Indian children had mixed from the very beginning when settlers reached this area, the problem which exists today would have never arisen.

"I am most interested in education and I would like to see more Indian children become professional people."

"I am confident Indian children have the same potential as white children if the atmosphere is healthy."

Pupils Jam Schools

In Nanaimo, Trailers Roll onto Education Scene

NANAIMO — Six portable classrooms, at an estimated cost of $12,000 have been delivered to Nanaimo School District.

The classrooms come complete with insulation, lighting and blackboards.

The rooms are rented from a Calgary firm which sells them, but 90 per cent of the rental is applicable toward purchase, if they prove satisfactory.

The rooms, set up on the senior high school grounds, will relieve classrooms congestion by housing general academic classes.

After the 10-room addition, approved by ratepayers in December, is completed, the portable rooms, measuring 33 by 24 feet, will be moved to a new site.

Eight other portable classrooms have been in use in the district, but the record enrolment of 9,700 pupils within the district have necessitated their use.

A projected enrolment of 11,500 students by 1970, will force the building of 70 new classrooms in the district.

Campbell River Trustees Alarmed by Situation

By BRANT FELKER

CAMPBELL RIVER — Every classroom in the district will be overcrowded before the end of the year.

Many of the principals in the school district attended a school board meeting at which they were unanimous in their belief that the quality of education will suffer drastically if this is allowed to happen.

Senior Secondary principal John Young said the projected increase for his school is 550 students, up from 430.

"The capacity is only 520, this means an impossible situation," he said he considers three portable classrooms in addition to the present facilities as "minimal."

Secretary of the board, Phil Sampson, said that if Mr. Young's estimate was to be used as a yardstick, the junior secondary would need seven portable classrooms, and the remainder of the district 19.

Principal of Elm Street School, Stuart Foreman, suggested that the province could alleviate the lack of money by using money presently earmarked for new highways.

The school board was also told that negotiations between the board's representative and the Canadian Union of Public Employees has resulted in an agreement of 20 cents an hour across the board for school maintenance men.

The board decided against shortening the walking distance for school children, after hearing that it would cost $51,000 for new buses and $21,000 for their operation. The saving would have only been half-a-mile.

Trustees also decided principals' offices could do without carpet.

They approved of principal Blair McLeans, of Vergeen School, taking a class of 30 to Victoria on an exchange visit. This was without cost to the board.

The board was told by James Logan that North Island School councillors will meet in Campbell River Feb. 16.

Port Needs Big Building

New Desk for David

David Gunn, Grade 1, receives welcome advice from teacher Miss Lorene Jack at the new Drinkwater Elementary School on Lane Road, Duncan. The school, which opened Tuesday, has 160 students. There are five rooms and five teachers at present, but head teacher Barrie Irvine said a sixth will be completed soon. The school's sewer system, presently hooked to a tank which has to be emptied regularly, will be linked to the municipal system this year—(Klaus Muentner)

PORT ALBERNI — A third junior secondary school will have to be built in the Valley by 1969 if the growing student population is to be accommodated, superintendent Bill Gurney has told board members.

E. J. Dunn, which at present has an enrolment of 419, will have a capacity of 560 when the addition, presently in the planning stage, is completed.

With September 1968 enrolment established at 500, there will be some leeway there, Mr. Gurney said.

The major problem is at A. W. Neill school, already considerably overcrowded, with an enrolment of 785.

Estimate for the 1968 school year is 831 pupils, an impossible

It would be preferable for a cutback, rather than an increase in the enrolment at A. W. Neill, Mr. Gurney explained.

Plans for the E. J. Dunn addition and for the community service wing at ADS are already taking shape, but with an additional 130 or more youngsters seeking enrolment for the high school next September, this will still not solve the problem for the future, Mr. Gurney warned.

The community service wing will accommodate household economics and some occupational groups in one area. It will eliminate the use of present unsatisfactory basement rooms.

Neill Under Pressure

The temporary accommodation in the main building, which will still have to be used, will be for only very small classes and on an occasional basis, Mr. Gurney told the board.

The possibility of relieving the situation at A. W. Neill by diverting two classes by bus to Dunn school next fall, and using a portable classroom now under construction by senior boys in the vocational class, was discussed.

Commented trustee Bill Beekingham, "The plans are these, then. That A. W. Neill not be expanded, and that ADS and Dunn school expansions are now in the planning stage. We will probably be able to accommodate all students in September 1968 by the use of some ingenuity. 1968 is okay, but 1969, oh boy!"

"We must begin immediate planning for another junior secondary school as large as E. J. Dunn."

Although the board has elementary school rooms which it can make available in 1968 for the long-awaited kindergarten program, the possibility of equipment for them is worrying the superintendent.

The sum of $1,500 a room is allocated to the department for equipping the kindergarten rooms. But can the board call on this money to use in the temporary available rooms before specific kindergarten areas are constructed? Mr. Gurney queried. The budget committee will try and find a quick answer.

Cost Skyrockets, Voters Blamed

By KLAUS MUENTER

NORTH COWICHAN

A Southend sewer system will be installed this year at a cost of $600,000.

This figure is up $156,000 from an earlier estimate. Municipal clerk A. Vande Casteyen said the increase is due to higher construction and financing costs.

The scheme goes ahead in 1968, providing that both the government will allow North Cowichan to borrow money and that health officials approve.

Council Wednesday accepted the $418,000 bid of Chew Excavating for laying of lines.

Indian Land

The $600,000 includes the cost for mechanical sewage disposal plant, but this price could be reduced if the city lagoon is used, or if acreage for a lagoon construction would be made available by the city.

Another alternative would be the leasing of land from the Cowichan Indian Band to build a lagoon.

It was noted if the present Duncan sewage lagoon is used equipment would be necessary to increase the lagoon's capacity.

Coun. Margaret Robertson said, "We have no choice since the lack of a sewer system is a health hazard."

Early Defeat

"It is unfortunate that we did not get the bylaw passed when the cost was lower."

Town Southend sewer bylaws were defeated during the past two years.

Coun. Dennis Hogan remarked "It is most unfortunate that the first bylaw was defeated."

"It is a sound example of rising costs influenced by would-be engineers."

Careful Study

Reeve Donald Morton noted "I quite firmly believe the costs can be shaved down by a number of methods."

"We shall make use of every avenue of federal government assistance and by just keeping the plan economic."

After studying the engineers' report the feeling of duplication of services can be dispelled, remarked Coun. Tom Burge.

The Quamichan Heights Land Co. will be advised its application for a new subdivision at Quamichan Lake at Maple Bay Road will be approved, providing the subdividers construct curbs and gutters and set aside land for a playground.

Play Areas Please

Coun. Hogan said the new subdivision will have 17 half-acre lots.

He stressed the need for play areas in new subdivisions.

Coun. John Cannon said the municipality should establish a new policy for new subdivisions and Coun. Robertson agreed.

Coun. George Whittaker remarked the necessity for play areas in a subdivision with half-acre lots would be less important than in a subdivision with smaller lots.

Chamber Wants Vice-President

DUNCAN — The Duncan have one by the next regular meeting," Mr. Keeble said.

The annual banquet will be held Jan. 27 when the Chamber will entertain the guests with music and dancing instead of the usual guest speaker.

A special entertainment guest will be Miss Irene Henderson, of Victoria.

Presiding at his last meeting, President Dick Benzie said:

"This was not an outstanding year for the Chamber but I think it was a successful year."

Parksville's Buildings Set Record in Value

PARKSVILLE — The value of building permits rose to a new high of $682,721 during 1967.

This was composed of $588,201 for residential buildings and $94,520 for commercial projects.

There was another $6,740 included for miscellaneous building.

There were 36 houses built. Residential values reached a record level.

Records show building permits issued by the municipal office have increased each year since 1963.

The overall total for 1967 is $200,000 more than for the previous year.

In other Parksville news, Thomas A. Hetherington has been re-elected for a second successive term as president of the Mount Arrowsmith branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a high school girl who believes in free love. Please print my letter because there are plenty more like me and our side doesn't get very much coverage.

I am not a tramp. I come from a high class family and I make good grades. I see nothing wrong with sleeping with different boys so long as I like them and they like me — as a person, I mean.

Virginity is an old-fashioned idea that makes no sense any more. Why should a girl save herself for a man who is not making any great effort to save himself for her? In our social group I don't know of a single guy who has done much of preservation job.

Sex is an important part of marriage and I want to be the perfect wife. I feel that the practice I am getting now will be very useful when Mr. Right comes along. So you see, there are some logical and sensible arguments against virginity. And if you are fair, as you claim to be, you will print my letter. — MISS HONEST ing around so you will be experienced for Mr. Right who can stop now. Mr. Right will not view your list of bed partners as impressive credentials. In fact, he might get the idea that you are a bit of an alley cat.

I don't deceive myself into believing my advice will cut any mustard with you, Toots, but for the girls who have not yet lost the Great Debate, I'd like to say this: In so far as sex is concerned, practice does NOT make perfect. It does make juicy conversation in locker rooms and, of course, it can also make babies.

Dear Ann Landers: I read recently that a state school for mentally retarded children in Boston has accepted 300 pairs of old shoes from someone who had been saving them for 30 years. The shoe saver received wide acclaim for this "thriftiest and generous."

The whole thing made me sick to my stomach. Old, misshapen shoes can ruin a person's feet for the rest of his life. Many retarded children cannot speak well enough to let another person know what is bothering them.

I would like to pose a question to the fine citizens of Boston: Is this the best your state can do for its retarded children? — PARENT OF A RETARDED CHILD

Dear Parent: Thank you for your letter. If a Bostonian will come up with an answer I will print it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband died seven months ago. We had a fine marriage and his sudden death was a terrible blow to me.

For the first several months I couldn't even think of going out and enjoying myself. Now I am feeling stronger and I would like to accept some of the invitations my friends have so generously extended. My husband's sister says it would be disrespectful to my husband's memory if I did not honor the mourning period of one year. Do you agree? — WANT TO DO WHAT'S RIGHT

Dear Want to: No. Life is for the living. If you feel that you would like to socialize now, do so. It's how you treat a man when he's alive that counts.

Junior League Auction

Members of the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League held a white elephant party at the Mount Talmie home of Mrs. D. Adair. This is an annual event in which each member brings a white elephant gaily wrapped with a poem attached, giving a small clue as to what might be inside. It is then auctioned off to the highest bidder.

Mrs. J. Crockett was convener of the affair and Mrs. D. Adair attended to the punch. Each guest was greeted at the door by Mrs. Adair and was instructed to place her gift in a decorated box. Mrs. Crockett then presented the president, Mrs. B. Bertola, with a corsage and early arriver, Mrs. L. Patterson and late arriver, Mrs. J. Clarke with token gifts. Mrs. Adair received a floral decoration for her table and a charm for her bracelet. The auctioneers were Mrs. C. Booth and Mrs. T. Chalmers. Miss M. McCahill was treasurer.

Italian Fashions

Cool Colors Hot News

By LEONORA DODSWORTH
ROME (AP) — Cool colors — that's the hottest news from the Italian spring-summer fashion collections, in their fourth day of showings Tuesday.

Designer after designer is driving the point home. Frosty white and pastels appear to have been bleached even paler with chalk. This, rather than any drastic change in line, is the headline here.

As always in the Italian collections, fabrics are big scene-stealers.

Intricate intarsia work impressed buyers at Milla Schon. Insets and appliques in flower shapes, circles, chevrons and undulating stripes had the fashion crowd gasping at their intricacy and impeccable workmanship. These motifs were used with beautiful discretion on suits and unlined coats in cream-smooth wools.

Colors were pale and melting — powdery grey, ice-cold blue and, of course, white.

Funnel necklines, yokes and short capes kept the eye up high on suits. Hip-length jackets were softly tailored and sometimes shadily belted.

Shirts just grazed the knees. Out just off the straight, they had pinched-up side seams that gave more precision to the line.

Big enamel brooches, flat and circular or shaped like flattened flowers, were a new and handsome jewelry note. Drifting, delicate chiffons for formal wear were dotted with big, stitched-on spots and crescent moons which gave further proof of the skill of Italian seamstresses.

Sheer silk organdie dresses with chaste Quaker collars, triple-layered to match the long fluttery sleeves had a young, romantic look.

SLIDES OF ARCTIC
Mr. T. Hughes, experienced Arctic traveller, will show slides of the Arctic in St. Martin's Parish Hall, Obed Avenue West, Friday, Jan. 19 at 8 p.m. under the auspices of the Evening Branch of the Anglican Church Women.

Maxi-coats with big, hand-placed belts were shown at Antonelli. They came in classic pepper and salt tweeds and were worn over shantung pyjamas. Crossword-puzzle checked wools in pale, pretty colors on white made smart city coats. Antonelli's discotheque dresses rattled like bead curtains with flying hula skirts made from sequinned fringe.

Grounding Inquiry Ordered

A naval board of inquiry will probe the grounding of HMCS Qu'Appelle, the navy said Tuesday, but no date has been set.

The crippled 2,800-ton destroyer escort was towed to Esquimalt Harbor shortly before noon Tuesday after crunching stern-first onto the rocks just northeast of Weir's Beach late Monday night.

The navy said Tuesday that the full extent of the damage to the ship was not known, and cost of repairs could not yet be estimated. It was also not known where the repairs would be made.

LOT OF POUNDING
However, an unofficial source said the ship's rudders, propellers and shafts were badly damaged.

"They were never meant to stand up to that kind of pounding," the source said.

The stricken ship arrived at the harbor entrance under tow of her sister ship HMCS St. Croix, and moored to a buoy to disembark certain types of ammunition, the navy said. She was later moved to a naval jetty.

ANCHOR PARTS
Seven vessels and two rubber boats from the navy's diving school went to the aid of the grounded warship before she was pulled free from her rocky perch by the St. Croix shortly after 8 a.m. Tuesday.

The navy offered no explanation of why the ship could not keep herself in deep water after her anchor failed.

The Esquimalt-based warship went ashore at about 11:30 p.m. Monday. She had anchored in Parry Bay on completion of a sailpast Monday morning for Defence Minister Leo Cadigan, who was here on his first visit since he became minister last September.

The anchor chain of the ship parted in strong winds while she was at anchor, and the second anchor would not hold in the heavy swell, it was learned Tuesday. It was previously reported that the ship had dragged her anchor.

DENTED PLATES
The navy tug Heatherston, which went to the aid of the grounded vessel at 1 a.m., within 45 minutes of being summoned, also went aground.

Seamen's Main Concern

Light's Sleep Lost Over 'Old Tub'

Only two things bothered some seamen aboard HMCS Qu'Appelle when she grounded near Weir's Beach Monday night.

They missed a night's sleep. And they feared cancellation of the scheduled cruise to Japan in March.

They had no worry for life or limb during the nine-hour effort to refloat the destroyer escort after she went ashore near William Head at 11:30 p.m. Monday, according to two abseilmen.

"Most of us looked at it as a big joke at first, until we had to work on it, and then we got pretty browned off," one youthful crew member commented Tuesday night.

The Qu'Appelle had dropped anchor in Parry Bay, about five miles west of Victoria, at 4:30 p.m. Monday and dragged anchor in the face of a high wind and incoming tide. She was towed off shortly after 8 a.m. Tuesday.

"We figured we might lose the old tub, but that's about all," said the seaman.

He said he and most of the crew were asleep as the 2,800-ton, $30,000,000 ship drifted toward shore.

"But I sure woke up in a hurry when there was a sudden jolt. My head slammed into a bookcase. But I tried to get back to sleep."

He said an alert buzzer then sounded, and "everybody was hooting it all over the ship. We didn't get any sleep after that, and it was mighty cold."

A crew member from the St. Croix said his ship, also anchored in the bay, drifted about 100 yards from its mooring to the shore.

He emphasized that the majority of his shipmates lost their sleep for the night.

"I guess some men who didn't have anything to do with the rescue got to stay in their racks (beds)."

Towing attempts were made by the St. Croix while the Saskatchewan, also anchored in the bay, steamed for sea, he added.

Another Qu'Appelle crew member added:

"There was no panic. We sort of wondered what had happened."

"It was more of an experience than anything else. You don't worry about these things. If the ship was going to sink, it would have sunk."

"We were close enough to shore and we knew there were lots of people around to help us, so we weren't in any danger."

"It might have been bad if the thing (ship) had tipped." One seaman said: "I guess there was concern among the officers. And I guess it'll be the officer who get the blame for it."

"But that will just be at first. And then the blame will all fall onto some poor guy in the lower ranks. It always happens that way."

The man said they doubted repairs to the ship could be completed before March, when the Qu'Appelle is scheduled for a cruise to Japan.

No official estimate of damage has been determined. "The ship could be tied up in repairs for the next six months. It's impossible to tell right away what's been wrecked. But there are all kinds of tumors going around."

"All I know is that I didn't care too much about it. All I wanted to do was get back to my rack."

Marchers Near $114,000

The organizers of November's March for Millions forecast Tuesday that its receipts may go as high as $114,000.

So far, the sponsors of the estimated 10,000 marchers have come across with $109,070.40, and up to $5,000 is expected."

The marchers trekked a 26-mile circuit for Project 100, a Canadian youth Centennial project. Eighty per cent of the money will go toward the purchase of portable classrooms for developing Commonwealth countries and the remainder for three Oxfam projects.

Bob Taylor, chairman of the march's organizing committee, announced Tuesday everyone who took part, or helped with the trek, is invited to a free dance at the Bay Street Armory, Jan. 27.

The money pledged to the various agencies will be turned over at that time.

Time Change

Daylight saving time will begin at 2 a.m. April 28 and end at 2 a.m. Oct. 27 this year, the provincial cabinet decreed Tuesday.

Free Vaccine Refusal May Delay Schools Plan

Federal and provincial health departments will pay to prevent smallpox, poliomyelitis and many other diseases including typhoid, but they won't supply free measles vaccine, members of the metropolitan board of health were told Tuesday.

For this reason, if the board wants to carry out an immunization program among elementary schoolchildren, it will have to find the money from school boards or civic governments.

It was decided Tuesday that the pre-school children's program would go ahead in late February or March, but the drive in the schools might have to wait.

A further appeal will be made to the senior governments, but Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical officer, held out little hope.

He warned that the area was off for an epidemic. Measles hit about every two or three years.

Earlier, Dr. Whitbread warned that while measles was a common disease, it was not to be taken lightly. One case in 1,000 developed encephalitis and in every 3,000 to 4,000 cases one patient was left with severe mental retardation.

"It is felt that mass immunization of our children has been too long delayed," the doctor said.

Area Lions clubs have pledged to raise half the $8,000 needed for the preschool program, and the other will be made up from a bequest left to the board of health. The elementary school program would cost something less than $20,000, Dr. Whitbread said.

"I think the issue is pretty simple," said Ald. Norma Sealey of Sidney. "We are a

Ottawa Has Solution

The Colwood Shopping Plaza pollution problem, which has plagued the metropolitan board of health for five years, has been solved, members were told at a meeting Tuesday.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical officer, reported to the board that Associated Engineering Services, acting for the plaza owners, Tankosk Yarmon Ltd., had received permission from the deputy minister of defence to hook up to the Belmont Park sewer system.

Effluent from the laundrette on the plaza and other sewage residue will be disposed of instead of entering the ditches along Sooke Road, as it did for years.

Dr. Whitbread said contracts were being let for the work. Pollution problems along Craigflower Road were still present.

However, action was being taken to amalgamate Esquimalt and part of the panhandle and if that came about, sewer lines would follow along Craigflower to Admirals Road, he said.

He said there are enough students already interested in his proposal to form a club, the organizational meeting of which will be held within the next two weeks.

It would be the first British Bulldog Club on a university campus west of the Great Lakes. One at the University of Toronto has "an outstanding membership," said Mr. Baird.

Bulldogs Seek Grip On Commonwealth Tie

An executive of the University of Victoria's Progressive Conservative Club, complaining about the national party's "wishy-washy liberalism," announced Tuesday that he is organizing a British Bulldog Club.

Jain Baird, a second-year arts and science student who is treasurer and past-president of UVIC's Conservatives, said the purpose of the BBC is to strengthen Commonwealth ties.

"On the campus, there is a great anti-socialist surge," he explained. "I hope people who feel that way will join our group."

Mr. Baird said the Queen as the head of a country is an effective instrument against a dictatorship. The present Liberal government, he claimed, is a case of "creeping republicanism."

LBJ's State of Union:

Accent on Negative

WASHINGTON (L.A.T.) — Noting "a certain restlessness" in the land, President Johnson talked Wednesday night to the nation of its troubles as he delivered an election year State of the Union message.

The accent was on the negative:

● He offered little hope for a quick peace in Vietnam as he engaged in another round of semantic dueling with the North Vietnamese leaders.

● He offered no new domestic programs to the general population and only expanded old ones to the impoverished in the urban ghettos.

● He renewed his demands for a tax increase and protection of the dollar to fight inflation and the balance of payments problems.

He said he will ask Congress to repeal the law which requires a 25 per cent "gold cover" for dollars in circulation. He said this would free U.S. gold reserves and hold steady the international exchange value of the dollar.

● He asked Congress to deal with such consumer problems as unsafe and substandard goods, rising medical costs and crime in the streets.

● He disclosed the budget for the 1969 fiscal year to be sent to Congress shortly will call for spending of $186,000,000,000 under a new unified budget format, with a deficit of

$3,000,000,000 if Congress enacts his tax increase. If Congress fails to approve his 10-per-cent surtax, the 1969 deficit will be $20,000,000,000, he said, the same as in the current year.

Beyond tipping North Vietnam off to the fact that this country would like to discuss "a really true ceasefire" if negotiations ever did begin, he offered no hope that talks were in the offing.

He reiterated what has now come to be known as the "San Antonio formula" for beginning talks:

That the United States would stop the bombing of North Vietnam if the cessation meant "talks would take place promptly and with reasonable hopes that they would be productive."

That appeared to be a direct reply to the spate of apparent Communist peace feelers that began Dec. 29 when North Vietnamese foreign minister Nguyen Duy Trinh said there "will be" talks if the bombing stops. Previously Hanoi had

Space
Plans
Knifed

HOUSTON (UPI) — The U.S. space agency has slashed in half its once-ambitious program for manned space exploration after the Apollo flights to the moon because of budget cut-backs, it was learned Wednesday.

One of the projects cancelled from the program known as Apollo Applications was a space station in which astronauts would live for up to a year.

Also out of the picture, for the foreseeable future, is a complete series of advanced moon exploration missions which scientists had recommended to the space agency.

All that remains now in the program is a single embryonic space station and sun-watching telescope. Astronauts will live in that station for one 28-day

Spider Biology --- First Hand

Basic biology of spiders, even under glass, was illustrated for 11-year-old Suzanne May, 1111 Dominion, after family friend gave her black widow.

Curious creeper produced egg sac, from which sprang 50 young. Now, as little ones disappear, survivors ominously keep doubling in size daily.

PEARSON WORD:
NO FEUDING

Bribery

Arrests
Pin
Tax Men

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty-six top-grade U.S. federal tax agents and a prominent accountant were arrested Wednesday on charges of bribing an Internal Revenue Service investigator who had uncovered corruption in connection with auditing income tax returns.

U.S. attorney Robert Morgenthau said a grand jury that has been investigating tax bribery cases for four years had made a "deep investigation" into all transactions handled by the 26 agents and will follow up all leads in an effort to uncover other irregularities which could include the tax payer personally.

"We're going back just as far as we possibly can," Morgenthau said.

The suspects were identified as four former IRS agents and 22 field men, all of whom had averaged about $13,000 a year in salary. They allegedly paid bribes to an unidentified inspector to quash investigations of bribe attempts of which they were suspect and to obtain confidential information about their cases.

By RON COLLISTER, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Pearson, at a secret meeting in his home, has laid down the law to the leadership candidates.

The message was simple and blunt:

Public cabinet feuding must end and there must not be a repetition of the Halifax spectacle last weekend, when candidates battled over medicare.

The five candidates, two declared and three undeclared, were called to Pearson's home as reports of threatened resignations spiced up the leadership race.

The five men were: Transport Minister Paul Hellyer and Health Minister Allan MacEachen, both declared candidates; External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who declares Friday; Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, who declares today, and Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, whose plans are not yet clear.

Four-Point Manifesto

Pearson issued a four-point manifesto:

● Cabinet candidates should not criticize the government in public.

● They should not accept public debate with each other.

● They should make no public declaration of medicare.

● And there should be no liquid entertaining of delegates at the Winnipeg meeting this weekend, after 10 a.m., before Mr. Pearson and the candidates speak.

Similar rules would apply at future rallies, in Montreal and Toronto.

Spokesmen for some candidates said they were happy that Pearson had laid down guidelines in private, and hoped he would do so in public.

He was out of the country, on vacation, when the candidates were deciding if they should go to Halifax last weekend.

And if he had been in Ottawa, it might have been possible to have an agreement that the candidates, except Nova Scotian favorite son Allan MacEachen, should not go.

At present, it seems that more candidates will be at Winnipeg than were at Halifax. John Turner declares his candidacy today and will go to Winnipeg. (See Page 11).

After talks with Quebec's Jean Marchand and Pierre-Elliott Trudeau, Turner is reported to feel "encouraged" to try for the leadership.

There is no firm decision yet on whether or not Marchand or Trudeau will run, but it could be Trudeau.

Marchand is understood to feel that, as Quebec federal leader, his stature would be diminished if he ran — and lost.

Marchand controls the Quebec organization but Trudeau is emerging as an important candidate with rising national appeal.

Sharp declares his candidacy in Toronto, in his own constituency, tonight.

Martin declares Friday and Pearson will have a news conference the same day.

The race is warming up. Excitement is feverish. And, as some see it, it may be hard to make those guidelines stick, even through Winnipeg, in a few days time.

General
Among Dead

MINOT, N.D. (CP) —

Twelve men died Wednesday morning when a giant KC-135 tanker plane crashed on take-off from Minot Air Force Base. There was one survivor.

The 15 men aboard the aircraft were all from March Air Force Base in Riverside, Calif.

The United States Air Force said Maj. Gen. Charles M. Eisenhart, vice-commander of the 15th air force, was among those killed.

Raft Drop
Misses
Freighter

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Air Force planes failed Wednesday in an attempt to drop life rafts to a Dutch freighter reported in danger of sinking in mid-Atlantic with its own small boats either lost or disabled.

The U.S. Coast Guard said the captain of the freighter, Ocean Sprinter, released the three planes, allowing them to leave the scene.

He messaged that the ship's crew of approximately 16 would try to stay on the listing vessel through the night, the coast guard reported.

Two U.S. merchant ships were standing by the stricken freighter about 1,300 miles east of New York.

Peace Talks
Possible
'Within Days'

PARIS (UPI)—Hanoi would be willing to talk with Washington within days after determining that the United States has stopped bombing North Vietnam, a French newsman quoted North Vietnamese sources in Paris as saying Wednesday.

Georges Brousseau, editor of the daily newsletter La Politique Matin said the sources elaborated on an interview with Mai Van Bo, the North Vietnamese delegate to Paris, which was released Tuesday.

Vag Bo said the talks between American and North Vietnamese representatives would begin within "a reasonable time" after the unconditional cessation of bombing by the U.S. Van Bo did not specify what he meant by "a reasonable time." But Brousseau said his sources told him it could be a matter of days.

U.S. Breaks Promise

Russians Doubt
Canada Sincere

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia says Canadian sales of arms to the United States cast doubt on the sincerity of Canadian government declarations that it wants to help bring about peace in Southeast Asia.

An article by A. Igrakov says export of arms and military supplies from Canada to the U.S. is growing steadily as American involvement continues in Vietnam.

SHELLS, PLANES

"Under concluded contracts Canada is delivering to the American armed forces artillery ordnance and shells, aircraft and armaments for them, radio-relaying equipment, warheads for missiles, explosives, etc. These arms are being sent from the United States to South Vietnam."

The article says use of Canadian-made arms in Vietnam aroused public indignation and protests in Canada.

It says the protests stressed that the weapons sales were "incompatible with the status of Canada as a member of the International Control Commission (on Vietnam) and grossly contradicts the government's statements on the need of stopping the war in Vietnam."

Quake Hits
Brazil Area

FORTALEZA, Brazil (UPI)—An earthquake Wednesday rocked the town of Pereiro, causing widespread damage. There were no immediate reports of casualties. Ceara state officials said the quake was felt in a 25-mile area stretching in Sao Miguel in Rio Grande do Norte state.

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — Cambodian head-of-state Prince Norodom Sihanouk has accused the United States of cynically disregarding its promises and affirming its right to launch military operations inside Cambodia.

Addressing a dinner Wednesday night for visiting Yugoslav President Tito, Sihanouk said he regrets that so few countries have denounced "this scandalous arrogance and this scorn for a word of honor."

He referred to recent statements by the U.S. State department which he described as "cynically proclaiming that America is not bound by the representative of President Johnson and affirming its right to launch military operations up to 16 kilometres (10 miles) inside our territory."

Later, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug quoted Tito as telling the dinner that Vietnamese peace talks now depend on the United States.

He called for the unconditional halt of bombing of North Vietnam and for recognition of the National Liberation Front—political arm of the Viet Cong—as an equal partner in any negotiations.

Not a Feather Ruffled in Neutral Nest

By IAN STREET

The men who will clash head-on after the legislature opens one week from today met by accident here Wednesday.

Premier Bennett had dropped into the press gallery to tell reporters the government had traded in his official car — a five-year-old Lincoln — for a Cadillac.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan came in to provide some other material.

For a moment both were taken by surprise, but they recovered quickly and exchanged a warm handshake and greetings.

It didn't seem to matter that a few minutes earlier, in the same room, Mr. Strachan had referred to a cuckoo in connection with the premier. Or that a few days earlier, on his return from Palm Springs, Mr. Bennett had referred to criticism by the opposition leader as chirping of birds who come out of the bushes when the legislative session rolls around.

"Good to see you, Mr. Premier," Mr. Strachan replied, equally friendly.

Mr. Bennett explained that he had been inspecting preparations in the legislative chamber for the session opening Jan. 25. He came into the press gallery rooms down the corridor for the first time in about a year.

The premier told Mr. Strachan: "It's nice to meet you on this friendly ground."

"Yes," said Mr. Strachan, "it's always neutral here."

Mr. Bennett then made a comment about how members of the gallery were good at asking questions, but when questioned themselves didn't give very good answers. Mr. Strachan chuckled in agreement and offered to leave if the premier wished to continue his conversation with reporters.

The premier insisted he remain, and Mr. Strachan did.

A reporter mentioned that earlier in the day, during a press conference with Mr. Strachan, there had been a discussion about birds.

An embarrassed smile crossed the face of the opposition leader, but the word "cuckoo" was not mentioned in the presence of Mr. Bennett.

(Mr. Strachan had told reporters that in reply to the premier's jibe about opposition critics, "I'm inclined to make some kind of comment about the cuckoo arriving back in town, but I won't." He added: "I'm sure if you print that as I said it, people will get the inference.")

Mr. Bennett said the new Cadillac official car was a limousine which cost "a net of $7,500" and had been obtained in the normal manner with the purchasing commission inviting bids. The Cadillac to be supplied by Morrison Motors was the low bid, he said.
